Look to This Day

*Look to this day,
For it is the very life of life.
In its brief course lie all the verities and realities of your existence:
The glory of action,
The bliss of growth,
The splendor of beauty,
For yesterday is but a dream and tomorrow is only a vision;
But today well lived makes every yesterday a dream of happiness, and every tomorrow a vision of hope.
Look well, therefore, to this day.

*Today is the time for living.
We cannot relive yesterday's precious moments or undo yesterday's mistakes.
We cannot know exactly what the future holds or what we shall become.
But we can keep cherished memories and profit from our mistakes, and we can direct our future
by living today for a better tomorrow.
Tomorrow's memories are made today.
Tomorrow's triumphs originate today.
Today is the time for living.*

GORDON HERRINGTON

For him the Teacher's chair

became a throne

—Longfellow

A memorable teacher is many persons — an individual, an instructor, a friend and adviser. Mr. Gordon Herrington more than fulfills these qualifications.

As an individual, he experiences the simple joy of family and friends, the worry and wonder of each new day, and the satisfaction that comes from achievement.

As an instructor, he is aware of the changing techniques in teaching and of advances in subject material and applies this knowledge to his own classes. He strives, as head of the social studies department, to modify knowledge and experience into a challenge for the imagination of his students. It is his responsibility and pleasure to guide, understand, stimulate, and evaluate.

As a friend and adviser, he establishes a close personal relation with each student by being patient and fair and by maintaining an appealing wit and sense of humor. While sharing in the thoughts and triumphs of his pupils, he realizes that none of their problems is too insignificant to merit his complete attention and counsel.

Because he possesses all these traits that inspire our respect, admiration, and affection, we dedicate the 1967 OLD GOLD BOOK to Mr. Gordon Herrington.

School board tackles

The backbone of the school system is the school board, a group of men who give of their time to improve Hot Springs' educational standards. The board, which meets on the first Monday of each month, carries out work which is both complex and difficult.

This year the main project was the planning, financing, and constructing of the new high school. It will be located on 52½ acres on Emory and South Patterson streets. Some of the features of the school will be a central area composed of the library with a large locker area on a level beneath it, a small theater, carpeting in most rooms, and air conditioning. The completion date of this 1,800-student-capacity school is set for September, 1968.

Among the board's other projects were the new Park and Whittington elementary schools, the latter of which was completed this year.

This school term an operational budget of approximately $2,242,000 was apportioned to individual schools according to need rather than to size. A partial breakdown of the budget includes $1,478,000 for instructional services such as principals' and teachers' salaries; $153,000 for the operation of schools; and $30,000 for new equipment.

School welcomes new superintendent and assistant

DR. J. HARVEY WALTHALL
Superintendent

Hot Springs city schools received a new superintendent this year with the arrival of Dr. J. Harvey Walthall. He was previously employed as the assistant superintendent of personnel and research of the Little Rock public schools. Earlier he had served various Little Rock and Pulaski County schools as principal, assistant principal, and teacher in both high school and elementary grades. He obtained his B.S. degree from Arkansas State Teachers College and his M.S. and Ed.D. degrees from the University of Arkansas.

Dr. Walthall is an active member of the Rotary Club and enjoys such activities as playing golf, hunting, and fishing. His family includes his wife, Louise, and three children — Chris, Dale, and Jay.

Another new official is the assistant superintendent, Mr. Maurice Dunn, who is from Arkadelphia. He gives assiduous help to Dr. Walthall in performing the duties of the office. Together they control the administration of the city schools, seeing that everything is run smoothly. They both serve as public relations men. One of their responsibilities is to select the teachers for all the schools in the system. Since the plans for a new high school and two elementary schools are finally becoming a reality, Dr. Walthall and Mr. Dunn find their days and many nights work-packed.

Dr. Walthall works with school board members on plans for the new high school.

Principal, a dedicated and sincere leader

Mr. William C. Mears is known and loved as the dedicated, sincere leader of Hot Springs High School. Because of his desire to give the students the type of educational program they need, he has won the admiration and respect of all those who are associated with the school.

Until a new superintendent for the Hot Springs city schools could be found, Mr. Mears was asked to be the acting superintendent. He willingly and efficiently served in addition to performing his other duties as principal.

This year Mr. Mears made into a reality an idea he had conceived while working on his Master of Arts degree at Northwestern University. This idea was to give the students lessons on proper study habits. In lecture sessions he told the students how to divide their time and how to develop correct study habits for different subjects.

Mr. Mears accompanied the Student Council officers to South Carolina for the Southern Association of Student Councils. He served as a valuable adviser and leader for the officers during this time.

Because of his fairness and understanding in his dealing with the problems of today's youth, the students trust him as a devoted friend. This feeling was demonstrated on Teacher Appreciation Day with a standing ovation.

MRS. HARRIS MACKEY
Assistant Principal

A friend to all, Mrs. Mackey is an essential part of the school.

Assistant Principal serves school and state

Mrs. Mackey's great patriotism is conveyed to the student body through a special assembly.

Mrs. Johnnie Mae Mackey, assistant principal, devotes her full and active life to the youth of Hot Springs and of the state of Arkansas. In all policies and activities that she has participated in or sponsored, she has held patriotism and leadership for youth as her two main objectives. Mrs. Mackey has not only spoken of these, but has also displayed these qualities in her personal life.

This year she was appointed State Leadership Chairman by the National American Legion Auxiliary. While serving in this office, she held two-day workshops in Northeast, Northwest, Southeast, and Southwest Arkansas, respectively. In preparation for this teaching, she attended a special training course in Atlanta, Georgia.

One award which she received during the past year was the Faubus Official Family Certificate. This was presented to her for her service on several commissions and for heading the women's division of two Faubus campaigns.

As director of activities at high school, Mrs. Mackey works closely with the students as adviser for any projects they undertake. She is always close at hand when anyone needs her, whether it is to lead "Hallabaloo" in a pep rally or to assist the Student Council with its numerous projects. She is always willing and ready to help the students whenever they ask.

Efficient office personnel override confusion

Efficient is the word that best describes the nerve center of the school—the office. Efficiency is a “must” in handling the questions twelve hundred students can ask, checking absentees, keeping permanent records up-to-date, copying transcripts, making out tardy permits, and performing all the services that the information center of the school is expected to render. With all this work, the office staff keeps the apparent confusion under control at all times.

The office also serves as a training center. Students gain valuable experience by acting as assistants to the permanent staff. They answer the telephone, collect absentee slips, act as receptionists, deliver messages, and perform any other jobs that arise during the day.

Signing up for seventh period is always an unpleasant task, although some students seem to make a habit of it.

Guidance office —

"Help! Mrs. Irons, you've got to get me out of there. I'm flunking!" are words well worn in a place that is always brimming with students in need.

The guidance staff, consisting of two well-trained counselors — Mrs. Irons and Mr. Counts — plus untold numbers of assistants, frantically rush to complete pre-school schedules for student enrollments only to change half of them at the end of the first semester.

Through two cubby-hole offices flow worlds of vital information of concern to both students and parents. Students plan their futures through catalogues from colleges and universities in all parts of the country, through a vocational library, and through firsthand advice. All data concerning college applications, scholarships, grants, and many civic awards are compiled here. Glimpses of college life can be seen in yearbooks from various in-and-out-of-state schools.

Mr. Counts assists sophomores with problems and decisions of high school life.

Guidance assistant Georgia Cook helps assistant Lisa Babcock find the information that she needs from the occupations file.

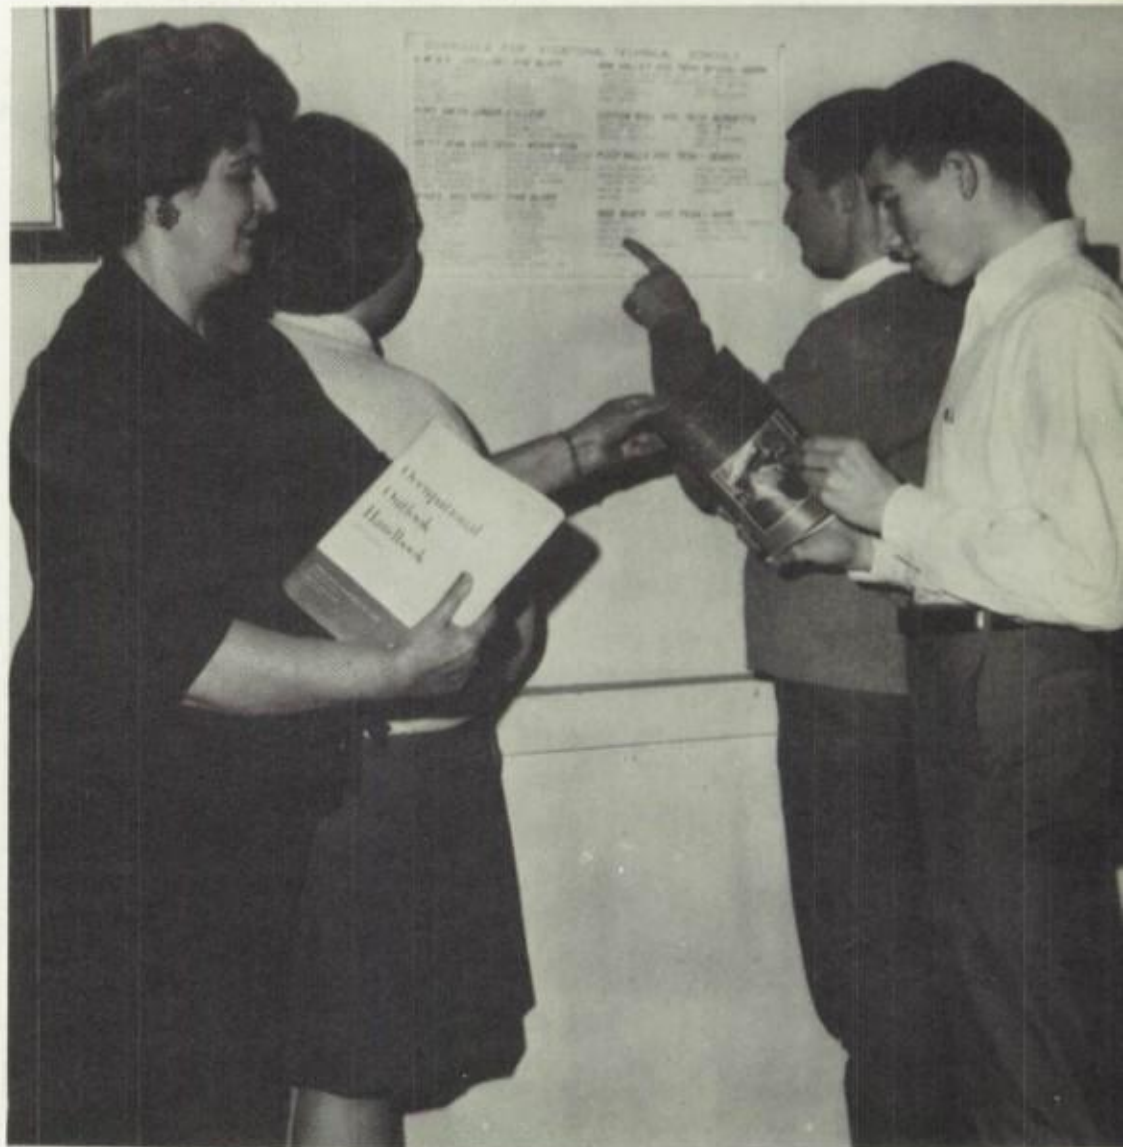

Students' second home

Counselors use not only academic grades in advising students, but also scores from a battery of national tests as well. These tests include the American College Test, the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test, the College Board Scholastic Aptitude and Achievement Tests, and the Iowa Tests of Educational Development. Test scores assist counselors in directing students into the fields or careers for which they are best suited. These scores also prove to be vital statistics for teachers, as they locate the phases of education in which students are lacking.

The guidance office keeps up-to-date information on high school alumni, often aiding them with information about job opportunities.

Linda Cleaver, Ken Blackmon, and John Morris make use of the guidance office's information on careers.

Mrs. Irons talks with Mr. and Mrs. Lambert and Mr. and Mrs. Riley about their daughters' plans for the future.

Alma Mater

There's a school we all love dearly.
We call her old Hot Springs High,
And for her, our Alma Mater,
We will fight and die.
We will cheer her on to victory.
Oh, let our voices ring true
And our hearts be ever loyal,
Dear old Hot Springs High, to you.

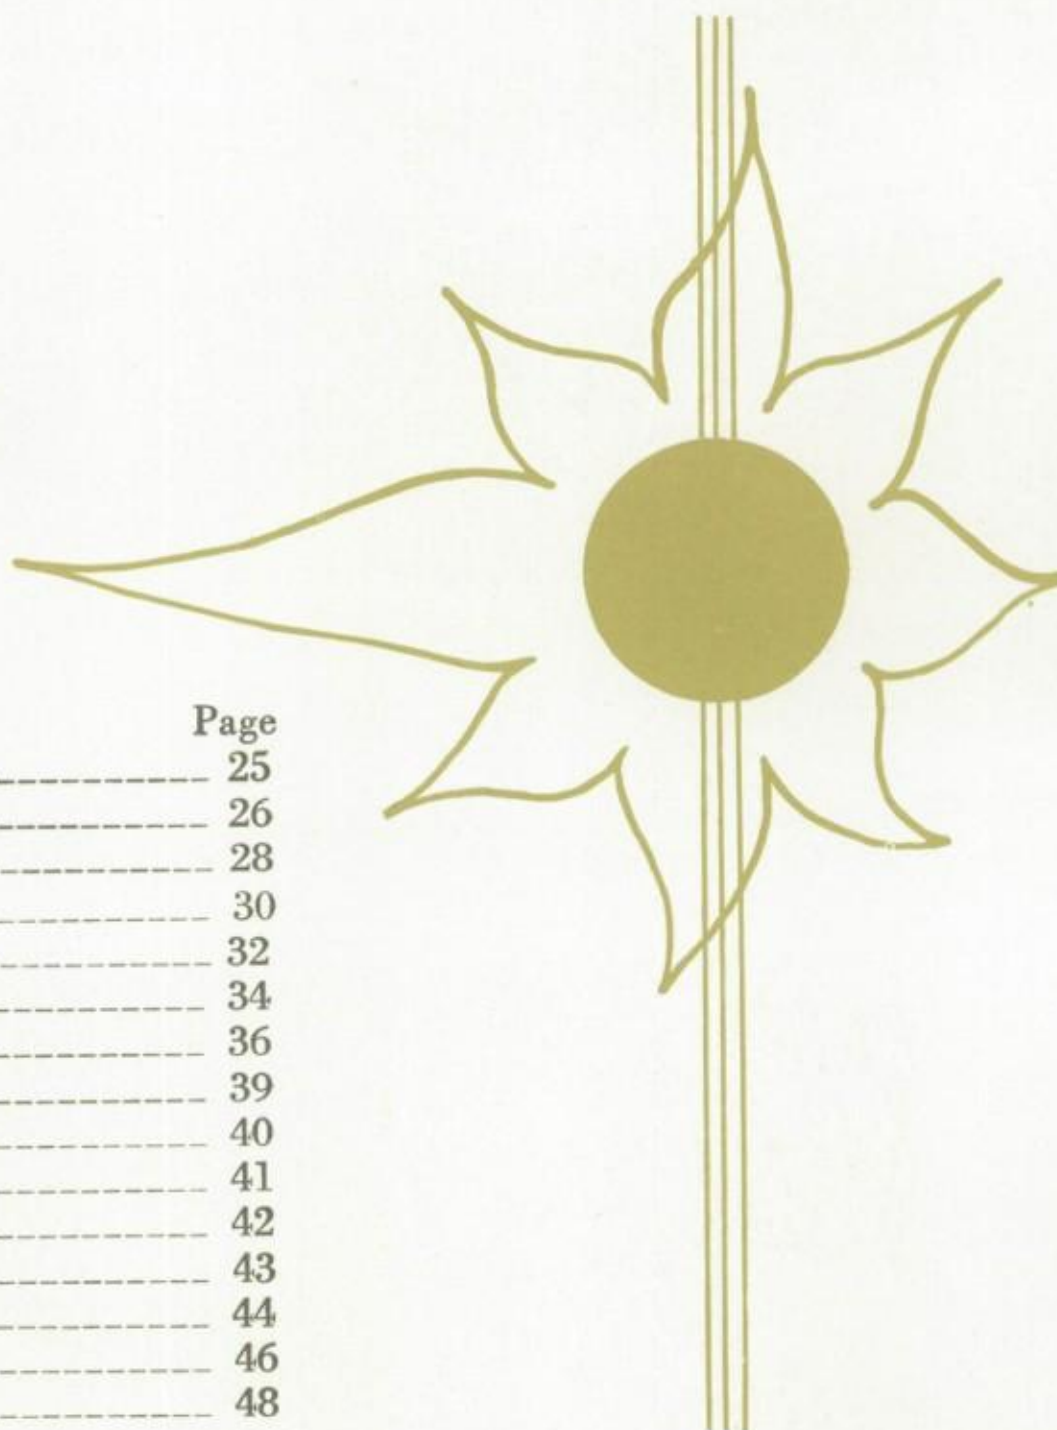

Spirit expresses itself in various ways

The bliss of growth . . .

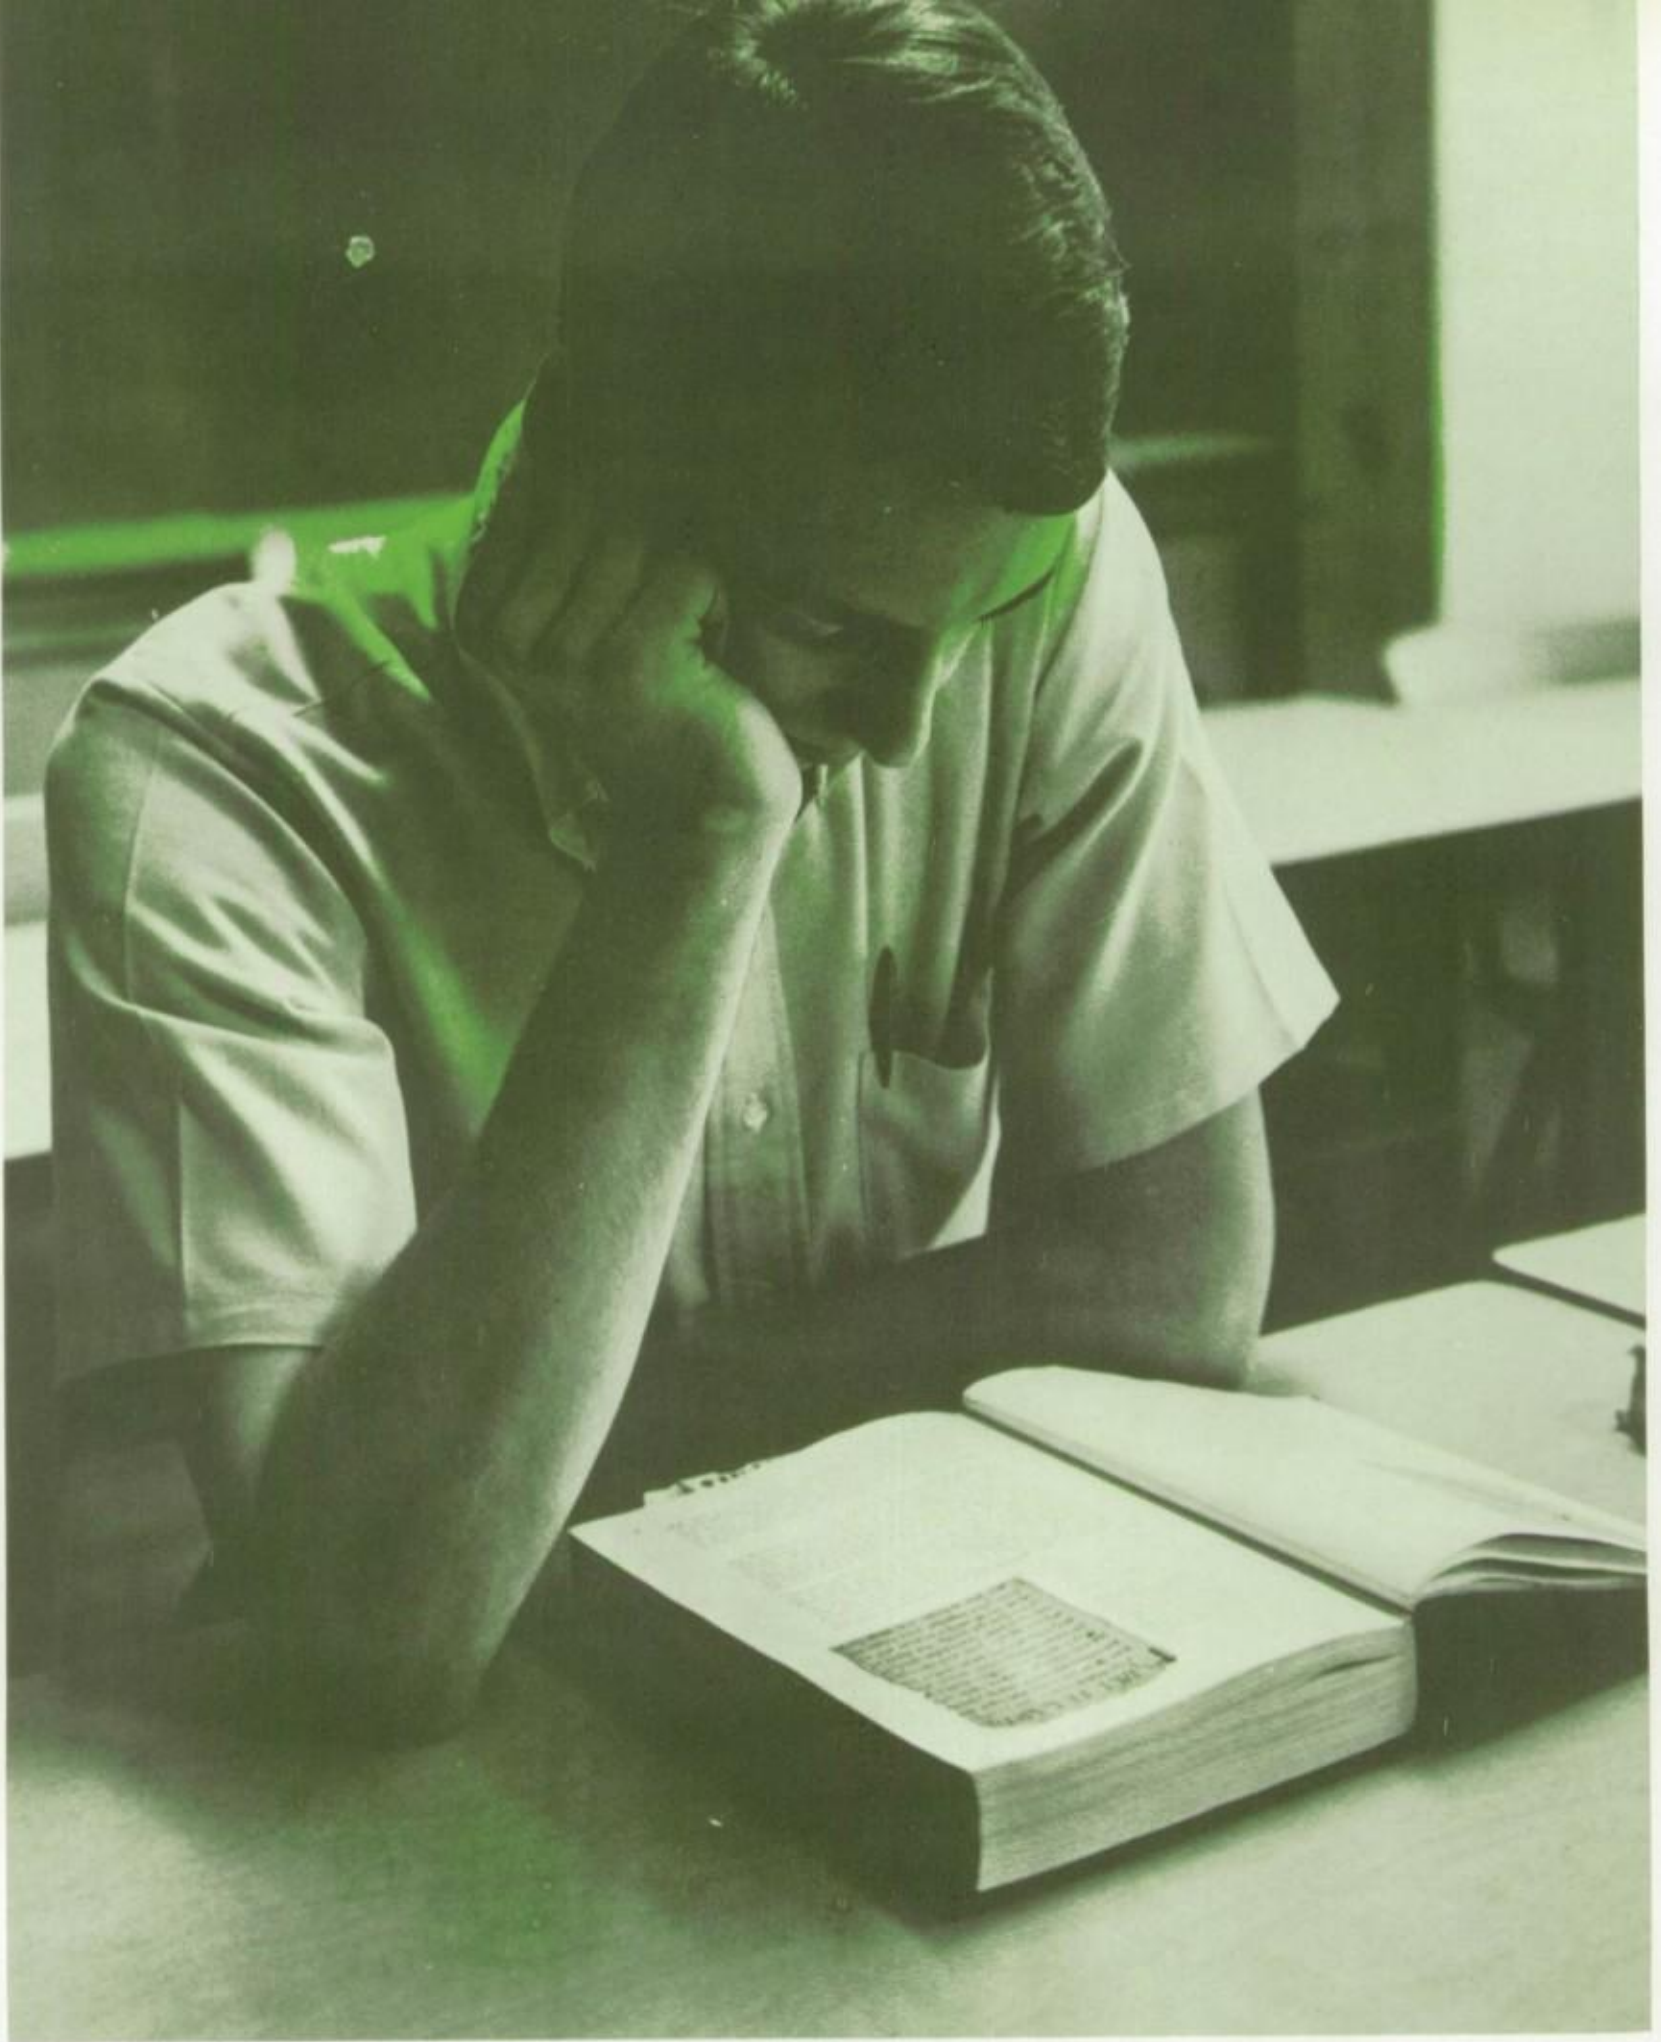

A moment's reflection on a day's accomplishments brings an inner peace and a sense of satisfaction to the student who is awakening to the infinite reaches of his capabilities.

Probing the outer realms of space or the innermost parts of the body, solving a seemingly impossible math problem, or perfecting a foreign accent, he cements the foundation of a successful future.

The joy of originating combined with perseverance reaps perfection and becomes the essence of life.

Classes

Growth and change are inevitable. In classrooms, new ideas, methods, and equipment challenge and aid students in their creative and educational growth. Familiar sights to the struggling New England colonist were hornbooks, primers, and dame schools. In the modern classroom, mass classes, visual aids, overhead projectors, and tapes are valuable techniques in education. All progress and experimentation strive toward one chief aim — to assist students in their unending search for knowledge.

Musicians specialize in voice or instrumentation

Through daily practice during the year, the music department was able to add much prestige to the school. The students have always seemed to take pride in their music department, and this year was no exception.

The chorus classes spent their time learning songs to perfection for the programs they presented. This music was of various types — sacred, classical, folk, and popular — to give variety to the singing. In these classes the students were taught the fundamentals of music theory, sight reading, the finding of pitch and of the key in which the music is written. Correct vowel sounds and rhythm patterns were continuously stressed.

The Trojan band practiced during every class period so that it, too, would be well prepared. Its music selections of jazz and classical music covered such composers as Shubert and Bach. Special occasions, such as the district festival, brought excitement to the band room and the members. The stage band met third period every day.

"Quiet please" a well-worn phrase

The card catalogue makes finding a book a quick and easy task.

Bert settles down to some serious research in the Garland County Library.

Students study, read for pleasure, and use research materials in the quiet of their library.

n the library

The three R's of libraries: maintaining a reliable selection of all material, supplying suitable quantities of research sources, and providing a quiet atmosphere for reading pleasure—these are observed in the HSHS and Garland County libraries.

Undoubtedly the library becomes one of the most populated rooms in the school at term-paper time. As the days before the deadline are crossed off, students come to appreciate the order and quiet atmosphere of the library. Information on numerous topics is readily available to all students through magazines, newspapers, books, and reference materials. Those who find it difficult to get to the library during the day can drop in either at the lunch hour or after school.

Another excellent source of information is Garland County Library. Oftentimes books not found in the school library will be available in Garland County Library.

Many new books are being continually added to the library to make it more complete. Whether for research papers, book reports, extra-credit reports, term papers, or just reading for enjoyment, the library meets the needs of the students.

English classes have panoramic view of literature

"Write a Shakespearean sonnet" — these words annually strike fear into the hearts of seniors. In creative writing classes seniors experience adventures in reading and writing varied forms of Middle English dialogue and other gems of English "Lit." All seniors become acquainted with a host of foreign authors through such writings as Chaucer's Canterbury Tales and Shakespeare's sonnets and plays, including Hamlet and Macbeth.

Juniors scrutinize the American literary heritage from its earliest selections by Pilgrim writers to present contributions by contemporary authors.

Sophomores read their first great tragedy, Julius Caesar. Literary genres rather than nationalities determine the selections read during this year.

One semester of each year is dedicated to studying English composition. Here one meets the commoners of everyday usage and such distinguished characters as dangling participles, topic sentences, and research papers.

Sophomores discover new pleasures in high school reading.

Pat Carlson, manager, and Bill Roddenberry straighten up the book store, an asset of the English department.

Mrs. Sweeney's class members take pride in their archetypes bulletin board illustrating class discussion.

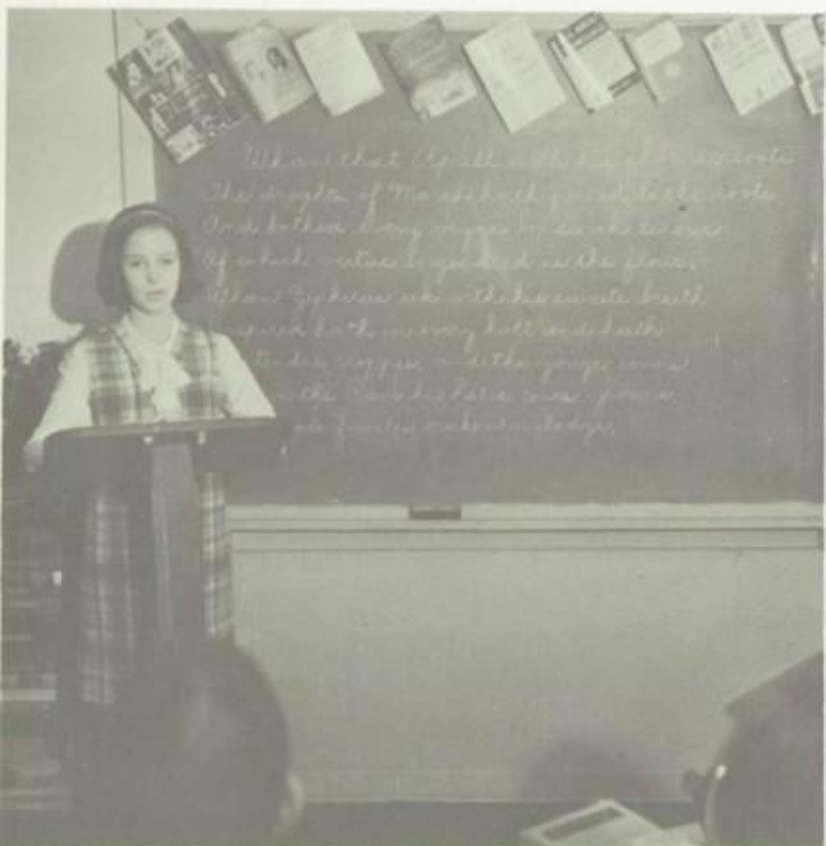

"Neither a borrower nor a lender be" is not the case with the English department's dictionaries as Tim Perrine pushes them from room to room.

These girls bring the Shakespearean Age to life in their portrayal of characters from MACBETH.

Mathematics

Lengthening shadows fill the room as Pam seeks the answer to her algebra problem.

Logical step-by-step proof helps geometry students understand this angle problem.

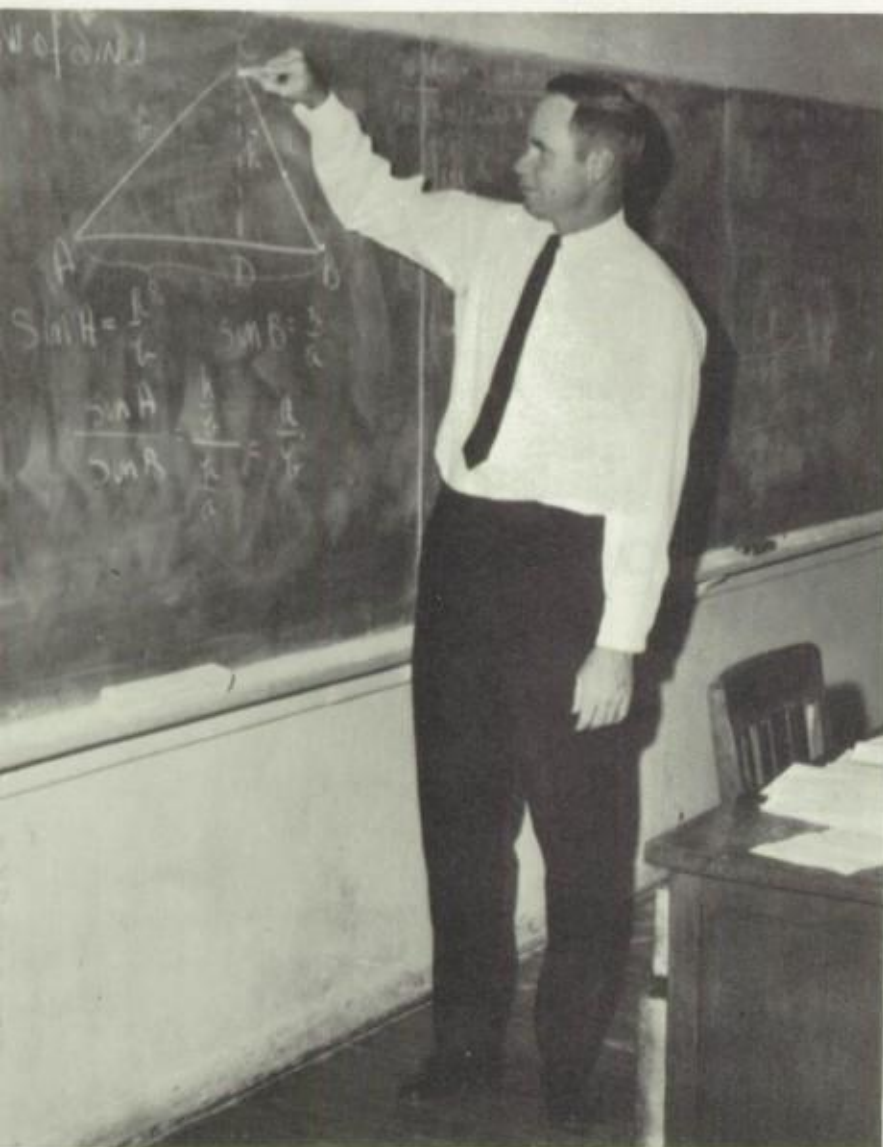

demands exactness

Mathematics is the builder of an orderly mind. Its tools are all numbers. Its language is one of cosines, parabolas, percentages, X's, and derivatives. Whether it is practical arithmetic or college calculus, mathematics teaches the student systematic procedures.

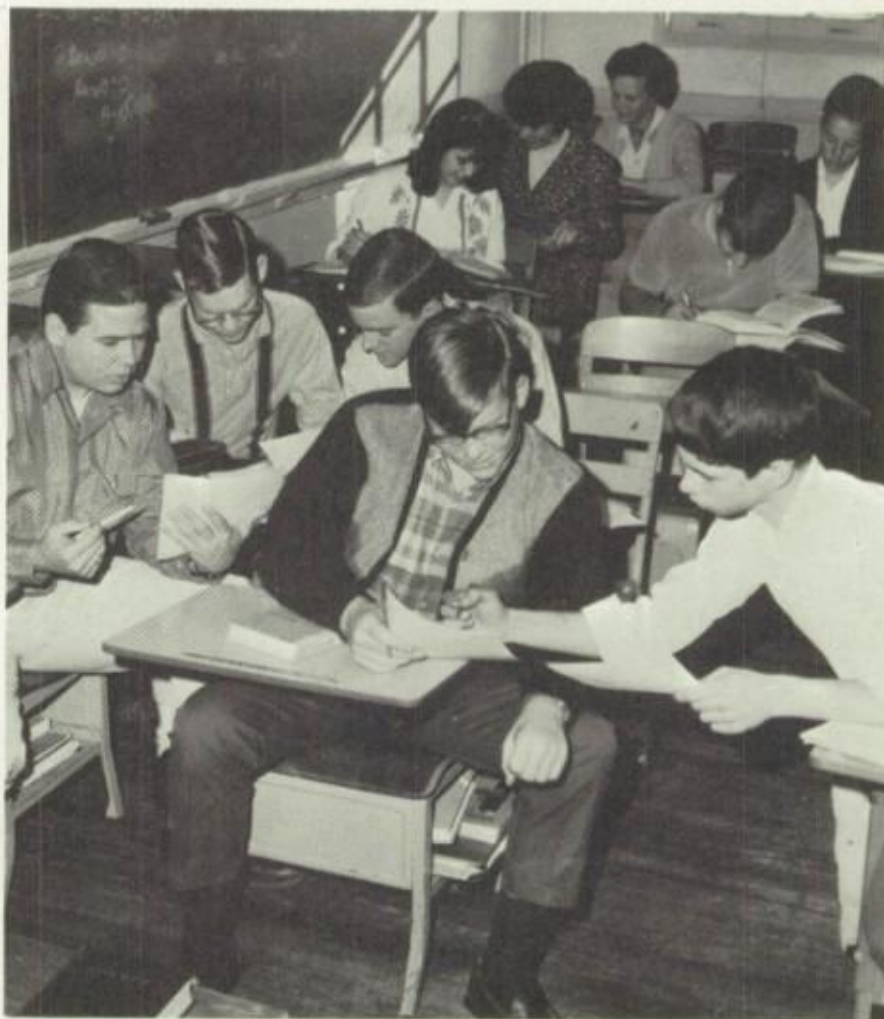

To the uninterested observer, mathematics may seem a dry, distasteful subject, lacking in enjoyment. However, to the ambitious student, mathematics is a challenge which urges him to push forward to the height of his ability.

Hot Springs High offers a very complete five-year course in mathematics, including a fifth-year course for those students who began their high school math in the eighth grade. Subjects offered are practical arithmetic, Algebra I and II, plane geometry, trigonometry, and college calculus. Each student may study at his own level and can advance as far as his ability will take him.

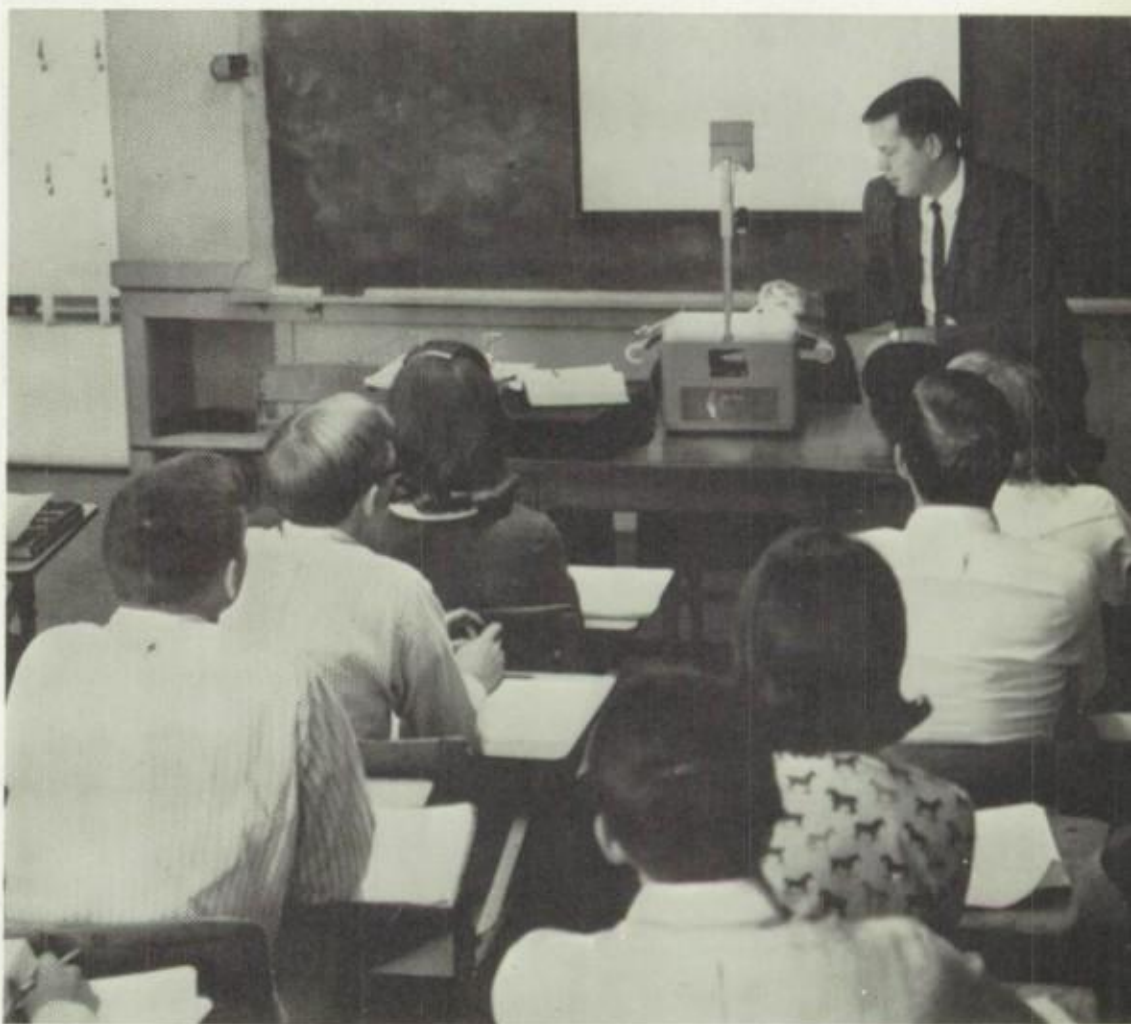

Mathematics also is a practical subject which will aid the student in his daily life. No day goes by which does not require the use of some type of mathematics.

Coach Johnson's skill and patience are valuable assets in teaching math students successfully.

By comparison of methods, misunderstanding and confusion over trigonometry problems are often straightened out.

Use of the overhead projector in Mr. Buttrum's calculus class simplifies and speeds explanations of math problems.

With a small amount of help from the globe, Ken Wheatley points out Hanoi's location.

Facing his mass class, Mr. Phillips consistently presents a well-planned American history lecture.

Senior Beth Lutes points out to sophomore Bobby Scott the cornerstone of the school.

Social studies creat

For the adventurous at heart, the social studies department offers an exciting challenge. Because social studies deal with people, the subjects covered are of interest to everyone and are often intriguing.

All the problems and solutions of the past are thoroughly explored in world history. They offer a clear explanation of the world around and give a picture of the baffling past.

The rebellious early American is revealed in American history. This subject explains the hard-fought-for freedom enjoyed and sometimes neglected by Americans. Each student discovers early America, as Columbus first Patty McCully and Ted Greis "have it out" in an animated debate in American government class.

Interest in government saw it, and follows America through the space age.

Every citizen plays an important role in our government. This role can be played most successfully when the citizen knows how his government is organized, what he can and cannot do, and what his own obligations are. American government classes lay the basic foundations of our complicated government and display a clear-cut and concise view of the American government.

The management of our government with a reference to income and natural resources is studied in economics. This is the subject for the business-minded student also interested in our government's affairs.

Dozing in class is definitely on Mr. Herrington's black list, as Robert Necessary is about to find out.

Such lifesaving information as the proper treatment of shock is demonstrated in health class.

Jim and Dick are well aware that the science of physics involves the use of many instruments.

Science combines knowledge with research

Coach Farris takes time to help students understand the fundamentals of one part of physical science.

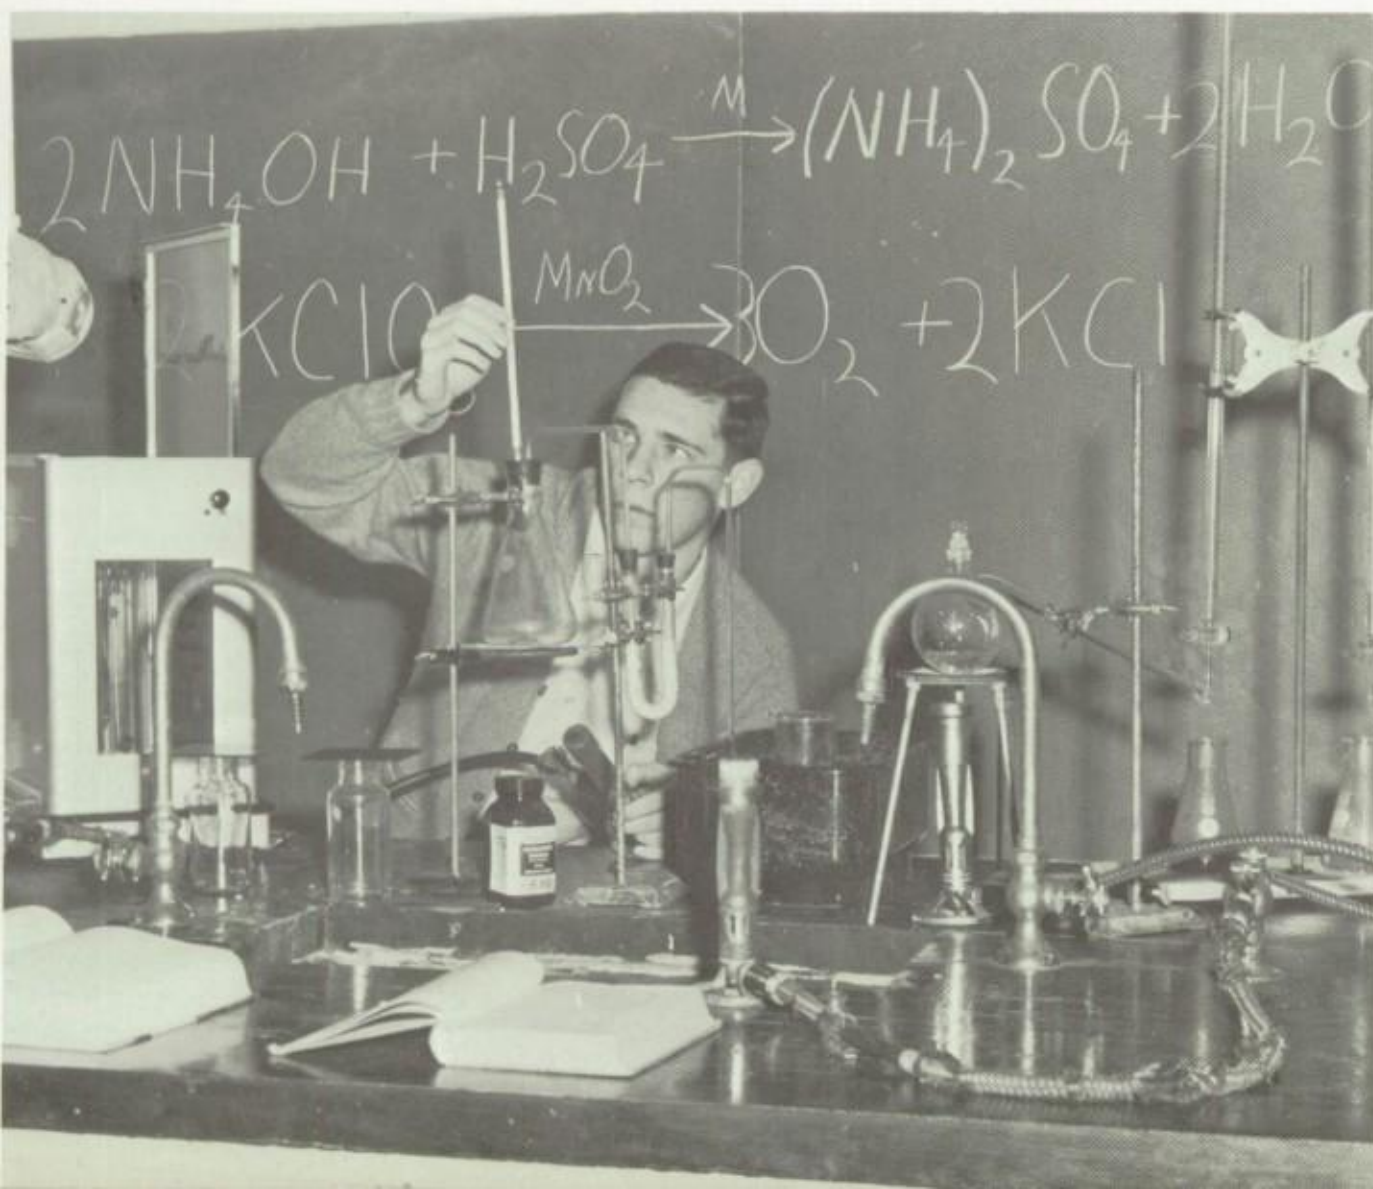

Today we live in a world of science. No aspect of life will forever remain a mystery in the shadowy depths of the mind. In the science department, students are taught to seek knowledge. Only through constant searching and inquiring can answers and solutions be found.

Various phases of science are taught in order to give a more nearly complete picture of the world around us. Biology shows the structure and importance of animal life and the human body. Chemistry and physics deal with chemical and atomic properties of matter and energy. Every diagram drawn, every problem worked, every experiment proved in these classes helps the students toward a higher level of intelligence in a vital area.

This year, besides the annual science fair, one project which the science department undertook was a field trip by the physics classes to the Lake Catherine Steam Generating Plant to observe the generators.

Mitosis, or cell division, and the structure of the D. N. A. molecule are two subjects discussed in biology.

Linda Finley and Phillip McCrory confer on Latin words and their derivatives.

This Roman villa is a prime example of the ingenuity shown by Latin pupils in earning extra points.

Universal language comes alive in Latin classes

French, Spanish and many other modern languages are basically derived from Latin. That is precisely why it is known as the universal language. It is not dead as many say, but instead very much alive. Many words of our English vocabulary come directly from this ancient language.

First-year students deal with Caesar's grammar. Declensions, conjugations, and derivatives are all a part of this study. After pupils learn to read as well as write in Latin, they are ready to go into the second course. In Latin II many famous stories of Greek and Roman mythology are studied. The students also delve a little deeper into the complicated grammar.

If a student is able to complete the study of the first- and second-year courses, he may continue his Latin education if he wishes. During the third and fourth years, he masters the grammar to a greater extent and begins his reading of famous classics.

Latin students learn of early Rome by studying its dress.

Taking careful aim, Ferd Mazzia prepares to make a "basket."

Ooh la la! The French version of bingo brightens up a day in class by offering fun and prizes.

Better communication—goal of French class

"Un, deux, trois" can be heard coming from the first-year French classes at Lee as they attempt to count in French. First-year students, along with learning to count, concentrate on vocabulary, basic grammar, and a few conjugations of the most romantic of the Romance languages.

The second-year students learn idioms of speech, vocabulary, and the cultural history of France. They are aided in their studies by French magazines, records, and tapes.

Since the principal aim of foreign language study is communication, much emphasis has been placed on pronunciation. Verbs are learned through use in a great variety of audible and written exercises. Workbooks have been put to use for the first time this year by both first- and second-year students. It is hoped that these workbooks with their explanations, drills, vocabularies, and reviews will aid the students in their acquisition of the communication skills or will give them insights into the culture of the French people.

French classes use tape recorder for dual purpose—improving accents and administering tests.

Second-year Spanish students perfect their pronunciation by listening to tapes.

Use of the record player helps students improve their reading tempo.

Spanish, language of festive people

Drenda and Jesse perform the Mexican Hat Dance to the accompaniment of Spanish rhythm.

Learning another language is both interesting and exciting, especially if it is one of the world's main languages in respect to diversity and number of people who use it. Students are challenged by the study of Spanish in the hope that they will someday have opportunities to speak it with people from Spanish-speaking nations.

The Spanish language is actually spoken by the teacher and students during the class periods. This practice helps the students to increase their vocabularies and to recognize correct usage. Another interesting feature of the classes is impromptu skits by the instructor and students.

During the course as they explore the many colorful traditions and customs of the people students examine Spanish culture thoroughly in order to gain a true picture of the Spanish way of life. They do this by seeing films, reading magazines and books, and hearing stories. They also enjoy and appreciate native music, which differs from ours in rhythm and mood. Original tape recordings with sound effects add humor and enliven the class period as they demonstrate the authentic Spanish accent, which many find difficult to learn.

Drama students learn stage lingo

Since communication is a basic need whether in public speaking or in conversation with a friend, everyone can profit by training in the area of speech.

The ability to speak well and facility in the use of words can offer career advancements. Speech students overcome their fear of public speaking and gain poise and confidence by participating in impromptu, prepared, and persuasive speeches. The history of speech making, pantomiming, and study of the phonetic alphabet are included in the year's course.

Drama students gain insight into the world of the theatre by working on make-up and its application, costumes, and projects. Drama classes also study speech techniques, the fundamentals of public speaking, voice control, stage movement, pantomiming, and stage terms. They often supply experienced personnel and necessary equipment for public activities.

Stagecraft plays a very important part in the production of the Thespian plays. Class members have taken on the job of cleaning the boiler room, building sets, and repairing the stage.

Helen Sims demonstrates the making of muffins to her speech class.

Pat Carlson's little brother Carl finds that Mr. Schooley always has time for a little fun.

Auto mechanics students learn by doing

Through grease and grime, Ken Blackmon discovers the hard work of the vocational field of auto mechanics.

"Send it to a mechanic!"

Although this statement is made often, few people ever stop to think of the time and work the mechanic has spent in preparing himself for his job.

Students of auto mechanics worked this year with real engines at Gulpha Gorge for three hours every school day. During that time the boys received needed experience and instruction. One project which they undertook during the year was keeping the fifteen school buses in top condition.

In the spring a delegation of boys will enter the Plymouth Trouble-Shooting Contest, in which they will compete against students from across the country, the winners receiving such awards as scholarships and money. The highest prize will be a new car. In preparation for the contest, the boys matched skills among themselves in class. Damaged motors were given to them, and they had to find the damage and then repair it. This lesson was both practical and useful.

During the year the boys acquired not only mechanical skills, but also an attitude of helpfulness.

Boys in auto mechanics learn precautionary care while acquiring skill in repairing cars.

Proficiency and skill are important in auto mechanics, especially to the man under the car.

The driver education class listens intently as Coach Rogers explains how a car engine operates.

As Coach Rogers soon found, Driver's Ed classes may turn one's hair to gray. Insurance rates are high.

Driver's Ed enlightens students on "auto innards"

Many of today's traffic fatalities are due to the fact that often people who are allowed to drive cars are not capable of handling them safely and correctly. Driver education hopes to teach the drivers of tomorrow to be competent and efficient before they obtain their licenses.

The students learn from books and films the rules for safe driving, the laws to be followed, and some of the fundamental parts of the car. Then they apply their driving knowledge as they take the car out on the road in groups of three or four.

An extra benefit in completing driver's education is the decrease in insurance rates.

"That's the engine, I think!" During the year some of the mysteries of a car's interior are solved.

Girls probe homemaking problems

Delilah Casteel models the result of long hours of hard work at her sewing machine.

"Be it ever so humble, there's no place like home." Mrs. Caristianos emphasizes home life in her classes, which are informal and comfortable. The girls study the problems and solutions of a homemaker in an average home.

In home economics, girls become associated with the complex world of the modern housewife. Included in their round of activities are such things as good grooming, marketing, and child care. Other elements, such as sewing, cooking, and cleaning, are also thoroughly studied.

Being able to set a charming yet appropriate table is one of the many things girls in Home Ec learn during the year.

Typing students learn that practice increases their speed and precision.

New teaching devices aid business classes

Old frustrations were enlivened this year by new ideas and equipment.

In shorthand a new StenoTrainer enabled twenty-four students to take dictation simultaneously at various speed levels. Calculating machines and an electric spirit duplicator were some of the new devices students in bookkeeping and office practice learned to operate.

Typing classes also had something different — three class clubs with membership depending on ability and speed and with progression possible from one club to another. These made learning fun and put it on a competitive basis.

On pleasant days, PE classes move outdoors for warming-up exercises.

Ping-Pong involves fewer motions than volleyball but requires equal alacrity.

Physical fitness

Physical education classes are designed to promote development and care of the body, including mental as well as physical fitness. Through the year, the students learn the rewards of being physically fit. Strenuous exercises and drills keep them exhausted — but in good shape.

Girls' PE classes compete in such sports as softball, volleyball, basketball, and track. They also learn to be good sports, to win and lose with smiles on their faces. Play-offs between the different classes help to provide a competitive spirit and to determine the champions. During the course of the year, the girls are given a chance to express their original ideas by creating dances and skits and setting them to music.

Besides engaging in many of the popular sports, boys' PE classes exercise, lift weights, and race. They learn the importance of body coordination and muscle flexibility.

The experiences the students have in the physical education classes help prepare them for today's challenges. They believe that sound minds and bodies bring progress.

DE, DO students learn facts of business world

Playing an influential part in the Hot Springs business world are the students of distributive education and diversified occupations. DE is composed of students who have on-the-job training in the selling of goods and services to the public. In DO, students learn a trade which will prepare them for the future. They discover the problems which coincide with responsibilities.

Both classes attend school part of the regular school day, then filter out into their various jobs, where they put to use all they have learned in the classroom. Not only do DE and DO students learn a useful occupation, but they are also able to earn money of their own.

Any student entering DE or DO must be willing to work and must have a suitable personality and character for his proposed job. The many programs offered in DE and DO help stimulate better relations between the employers and employees, acquaint the students with store policies and systems, and provide rewarding preparation for a life's work.

Jerry Garner demonstrates that at K-Mart a lot of work goes into a display.

Concentration marks the faces of students in mechanical drawing.

Drafting students learn basics of architecture

Enthusiastically arranging their drawing boards, students of the mechanical drawing classes ready themselves and their equipment for another hour-long attempt to master lines and angles.

Through the entire year, these students familiarized themselves with T-squares, scales, and triangles. During the second semester their time was devoted to the imaginative making of house plans, some of which seemed capable of winning prizes in professional architectural competition. These craftsmen will tomorrow be designing the skylines of cities.

Home mechanics class provided many opportunities for its students to study and experience a variety of maintenance, repair, and constructional activities commonly performed around the home. A portion of the final semester was devoted to repairing furnishings from the students' own homes. The boys acquired skills in leather work and furniture refinishing, and learned to read water and gas meters. Studying the textbook, observing demonstrations, and being tested was the weekly schedule of this class.

Teachers

Today is the only reality: yesterday is gone and tomorrow is uncertain. Teachers play a tremendous role in bringing yesterday — today — and tomorrow together, interrelating them and giving them meaning. It is the responsibility of the teachers to take full advantage of each day — bestowing knowledge, developing creativity, and teaching discipline so that yesterday will be “a dream of happiness” and tomorrow “a vision of hope.”

Teachers offer students more than knowledge

A teacher is many things: a target for practical jokers, ruler of the classroom, and a machine for instilling instant knowledge. But more than that, a teacher is a friend, possessing such feelings as kindness, understanding, love, and sympathy. He provides not only knowledge, but also companionship, encouragement, and guidance for his students. He is always ready for fun and laughter; eager to please; striving to be fair to all; and most important, doing his utmost to impart knowledge to the youth of today.

Our teachers among top

The teachers of Hot Springs High excel in all they do. They rank among the top educators in the state. The high honor of Outstanding Young Educator of Arkansas was this year bestowed upon Mr. Robert Heusel by the state Junior Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Virgil Spurlin served as president of the local Classroom Teachers Association and of the state School Band and Orchestra Association. The title of Chairman of District Five Section of the Arkansas Foreign Language Teachers Association belonged to Mr. Robert Walker. Mr. Mike Hammond and

To the question "How do you spend your spare time?" the answer "What spare time?" is given frequently. The hobby mentioned most often is reading; golf and fishing are second. Other favorite hobbies are sports, swimming, hunting, and coin collecting.

Teachers truly special people

Mr. Caristianos, Coach Francis, and Mr. Wilson steal the show with their comedy act at the teachers' banquet.

Many people wonder why anyone would wish to become a teacher. When the OGB asked our teachers why they had become teachers, many had no answer but that "It seemed the natural thing to do" or "It just happened." Other teachers said that they were influenced by former teachers or other teaching experiences in their youth. "Revenge" and "I often wonder!" were also answers received, but the chief answer was—the satisfaction of service to the youth of the nation. Our teachers are truly special people who have devoted their lives to the betterment of their nation through the education of its youth. We at Hot Springs High have a faculty we can earnestly appreciate.

The glory of action . . .

Exuberant screams,
pounding gavels,

these are the happy sounds of the continual rush of activities.

CHRISTMAS WITH

Activities

Activities, a basic part of high school life, provide entertainment, enliven school spirit, and give recognition. The vibrant, glowing pep rally; the reverent, meaningful Thanksgiving assembly; the ear-shattering Homecoming dance; and the exuberant poster-filled Student Council election all give students a true recognition of the "glory of action."

Special days and weeks animate school life

School just would not be the same without the holidays and special occasions that occur during the school year. The first "big break" was the two-week Christmas vacation. Later the semester break gave sophomores their first real taste of high school life.

Students donned their finest attire for Dress-up Day, while their voices received the "pamper treatment" on Whisper Day. During Twirp (The-Woman-Is-Requested-To-Pay) Week, the male pocketbooks were given a rest.

Spring brought warmer weather and more special days: Easter, Band and Chorus festivals, and the most widely anticipated day of all—Graduation Day!

Highlighting the year

Assemblies are always welcomed by the students. Besides giving a break in the daily routine, the assemblies provide the students with another chance to learn something and to be entertained.

A favorite with many was the comical performance of songs and jokes given by the well-known Jerry Van Dyke. He also told how he and his brother Dick started working in show business.

A two-part "How to Study" program was given in special assemblies by Mr. Mears. Another assembly featured Dr. Van Scyoc, who is a professor of English at the University of Arkansas. A representative from the United States Marine Corps and Mrs. Mackey provided two stirring speeches on patriotism.

atriotic assemblies inspire students

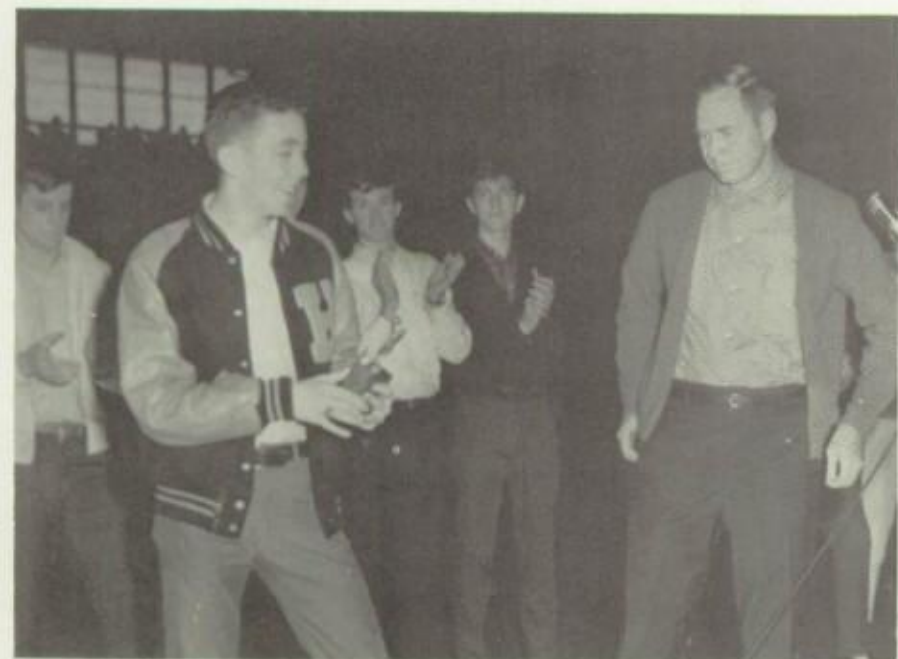

At pep rallies on a street in the center of town, cheers for the Trojan team filled the air on the night before every home football game. Then at pep assemblies, held in the field house and during the lunch hour, students yelled and joined in the traditional "Hallabaloo" to show their loyalty to the Trojans.

Brenda York and Pat Pultz, King and Queen of Pep, lead the student body in a traditional yell—"Hallabaloo."

Football Homecoming makes excitement for all

Queen Sally looks tense before she is presented to the student body.

Silence filled the field house as everyone awaited the presentation of the Football Homecoming royalty. All the students felt excitement and pride in their choice of the reigning girls. At the presentation ceremony, black and gold were mixed with purple and white; later that day the same colors, worn by opposing teams, met on the field ready for combat. Prior to game time, the girls were again presented to the admiring public.

After the game, a dance honored the royalty and football team at Lee Gym. The decorations again carried out the school colors of both teams. The court, along with the rest of the school, were decked out in finery. The Student Council sold large gold mums with black ribbons for corsages to the student body.

Dances make perfect endings for Friday nights

Dances at Lee Gym served as exciting finales to hometown football and basketball games. Popular bands from both in- and out-of-town provided the music for these memorable occasions. They were sponsored by the various clubs of the school.

Basketball and Football Homecoming dances and the Sweetheart Dance gave opportunities for dressing up. Elaborate decorations and special features made these highlights of the year.

An added attraction this year was the Computer Dance. It was sponsored by the Student Council and was held in the spring. Students who wanted to attend this dance paid for a questionnaire, which they filled out with information concerning themselves. Computers calculated their answers and chose the "ideal" date for each student.

Special nights aid student decisions for the future

Three special nights highlighted this year's evening activities: College Night, Medical Careers Night, and Parents' Night.

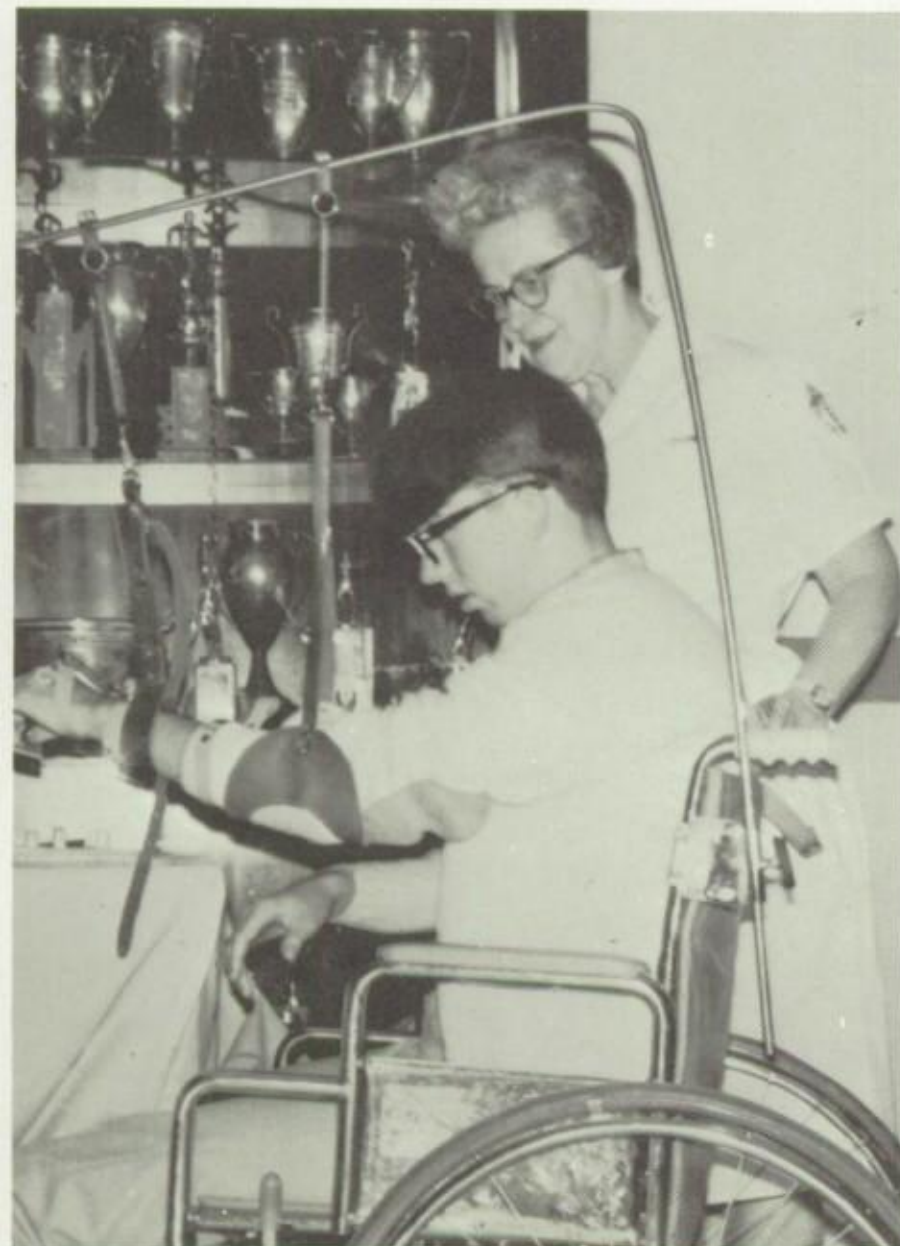

College Night, sponsored by the National Honor Society, was held in early November. Various speakers represented state colleges, business schools, technical centers, and barber and beauty training centers.

Medical Night, which is a program sponsored by the Student Council every three years, enabled the students to obtain valuable information on careers in the field of medicine.

Parents' Night gave parents the opportunity to visit high school. They followed their own child's daily schedule and met his teachers. This helped the parents to better understand problems encountered in high school life.

Joy-filled seasons celebrated

"Thanksgiving warmth from us to you" was the theme of Mrs. Housley's homeroom's fourth-place entry.

Two happy seasons at Hot Springs are Thanksgiving and Christmas. Each is sparked by a special assembly program. At Thanksgiving the Troubadours sang a number of appropriate selections before an inspiring message, given this year by Reverend John P. Miles. The Thanksgiving baskets, filled to the brim with assorted food, were presented to the student body; and the winners of the basket competition were announced.

Another special assembly, given by the Trojan orchestra band, celebrated Christmas. Students enjoyed taking part in the festivities by decorating their homeroom doors. Beta Club furnished a post office for delivering Christmas cards and packages. This year the Student Council gave Santa Claus tags to all students to wear on the last day of school before the two-week Christmas vacation.

Both seasons offered many festivities to the teachers and students, and all delighted in them.

Annual Band Variety Show combines talent and work

For the twenty-second year, the band and music students of the elementary, junior high, and high schools combined their talents, work, and imagination to present the Band Variety Show.

When the curtains parted and the lights dimmed, the packed house in the Southwest Junior High auditorium was greeted by the music of the Viking Band. This group was followed by the evening's vocalist and the speciality groups—Tequila Tin and German Band in their zany costumes—who entertained the crowd with their stage antics. The Spartan Band closed the first half of the evening's entertainment.

After a short intermission the program resumed with the Trojan Concert Band and a special piano number.

Thanks to the effort and talent of these many people, this year's Band Variety Show was a success.

Band Variety Show vocalist Joanie Sanford, accompanied by the Stardusters, delights the audience's eyes as well as ears.

The wacky Tequila Tin in full costume add a high-spirited and lighthearted zest to the show.

Mistress and Master of Ceremonies Nancy Brawner and Jack Smith keep the show rolling with quick-witted jokes and jests.

Comedy and folk music brighten student talent show

Although talent is distributed in different amounts and areas among the students, every individual is endowed with some ability to entertain and to enjoy. This fact was proved by the student talent show sponsored by the Student Council and held in the auditorium.

The talent of the entertainers ranged the gamut of the imagination. Corny and contagious comedy, popular folk music, as well as instrumentals and artistry, were featured in the hour-long assembly.

This talent exhibition proved to be a testing ground for a variety and abundance of the school's stars, as well as a delight to the student and teacher audience.

Judy Hobgood, a regular in talent assemblies, does her rendition of "People."

Making their debut as a folk-singing trio are Mike Pierce, Rob Norman, and Chris Walthall.

A novel and distinctive aptitude, not usually seen in assemblies, is exhibited by Faith Riley with the help of her model, Mike May.

Doing a comedy routine which delights and surprises the audience are Herman Aschcroft and Danny Hecke.

Homecoming Royalty helps spur Troy on.

Royalty adds glamour to basketball

One of the most exciting occasions of the year was the presentation of the 1967 Basketball Homecoming queens and their courts. Sparkling eyes and lovely formals all added to the gaiety of the festivities. Reigning as Trojan Queen was Nancy Mills and as Bulldog Queen, Pat Lee. Excitement rose to a climax as they were officially crowned and kissed by the presidents of the Student Council and the Senior Class.

This year an addition to the Basketball Homecoming was the Cheerleaders' crowning of a third queen and her king—King and Queen of Pep—who then led the student body in the traditional "Hallabaloo."

The T-Steppers added more color to the special day by giving two performances, one in the afternoon assembly and the other at the game.

The royalty was again honored that night at both the game and a dance. They loyally supported the Trojans as they played a hard-fought game. Although the game was not a victorious one, the day's activities were deservedly termed a huge success by all who participated.

Athletes honored with letters for hard work

Awards are given throughout the year for commendation; among the notable of these are the athletic letters. The big gold H's are earned by those boys who have given their time and sweat to their individual sports. These letters are the only rewards most of the boys receive for their long hours of training. The boys are given a letter and jacket when they letter their first time. Then for each additional sport or year, they receive new letters and letterman pins.

Athletic letters are the public recognition of boys who have, in their coaches' eyes, given themselves wholly to sports.

Thespians present life in OUR TOWN

The three-act humanistic drama Our Town by Thornton Wilder was presented as the first offering of Thespian Troupe #78 on December 1, 2, 3. The action of this 1938 Pulitzer Prize winning play takes place in Grover's Corners, New Hampshire, 1901-1915, with the scenes portraying the daily life, love and marriage, and nature and eternity that affect the residents. Our Town gives a refreshing contrast to most realistic dramas by requiring no scenery and few props. This play presents life in a time and place immediately recognizable as a typical American small town of yesterday; however, there is a daily life universality which was, is, and will always be.

"Now are there any questions from the audience?" asks the Stage Manager after Editor Webb has told of the origin and history of Grover's Corners.

Witty posters announce Student Council elections

Color, gaiety, and an air of excitement announced the beginning of the 1967 Student Council election. During campaign week, the students donned cleverly-stated name tags that declared their choices for the various offices. Brightly-colored posters, streamers, chains, and various other kinds of campaign material filled the halls and classrooms with clever advertisements, commercials, names, and slogans. Campaigning concluded with the nominees' speeches in a special assembly.

As the final day of the election drew near, the students began to realize that the decision of choosing next year's leaders rested on their shoulders. Excitement rose as the ballots were distributed in the homerooms. All candidates were considered, and the ballots were finally marked as another election day came to a close.

Week at camp inspires Girls and Boys Staters

PHIL MALCOM
Boys Nation
Representative

"Americanism through Patriotism" was the motto for the annual meetings of Girls State and Boys State, held last summer at Camp Robinson. Representatives from schools around the state were selected on the basis of leadership, citizenship, personality, and physical fitness.

The purpose is to build better citizens for tomorrow by giving them actual experience of participation in government. Boys and girls ran for offices on the city, county, and state levels. Others, elected to the House of Representatives and the Senate, presented original bills, which were passed and signed by the governor.

This year a Hot Springs representative, Phil Malcom, was one of two boys chosen by members of Arkansas Boys State to attend Boys Nation in Washington, D.C.

ELKS LEADERSHIP AWARD WINNERS: Charles Durham, Diane Goltz, Mr. Henry Irons, Elks Representative: Phillip Malcom; Lynda Kallsnick.

Leaders in citizenship and music honored

Students have shown their leadership and ambition by representing their high school the best way they could. They used their knowledge, talents, and abilities to win such honors as Elks Leadership Awards and to receive positions in the All-State Orchestra and the All-State Band.

ALL-STATE ORCHESTRA: Gary Meek, Deborah Bailey, Clyde Daniels.

Special honors achieved by hard-working students

Gifted students received well-deserved recognition for various scholastic abilities. The National Merit Test was given to many students, but only seven survived the exam to become finalists.

With the theme of world peace, senior English students wrote essays, which were entered in a contest sponsored by the Lions Club. Winners at the local level received savings bonds and a chance to enter the state contest.

Four Hot Springs students attended various institutes at Northwestern University last summer, receiving four hours of college credit and many rewarding experiences.

Members of DECA and VICA who excelled in their work or vocation entered state competition at Little Rock. Several Hot Springs representatives were able to come home with top honors in their divisions.

Honor graduates—promise of a better tomorrow

Eagerness, concentration, and determination made it possible for seeds of knowledge to find fertile ground in these, the honor students. Yearning for knowledge gave them the inspiration they needed to keep them interested enough in their subjects to excel in all of them. They are the pride of the student body, the harvest of the teachers, and the leaders of tomorrow.

Youthful energy directed

After escaping the tedium of schoolwork, students are devotees to devising ways for fun and relaxation. They have endless energy, spending it freely in various sports and activities, such as water skiing, horseback riding, hiking, picnicking, and even indulging in rare moments of simply absorbing the beauty of the scenic landscape.

Fads add new looks to old routines

Birds and butterflies are only a few of the artistic creations on the widely-acclaimed box purses.

Change is the spice of life. Today's youth is continually searching for new ideas and ways to express itself. Fads come and go, but they never lose their excitement. Students love to learn about them and to try to keep themselves up-to-date on what is modern and different.

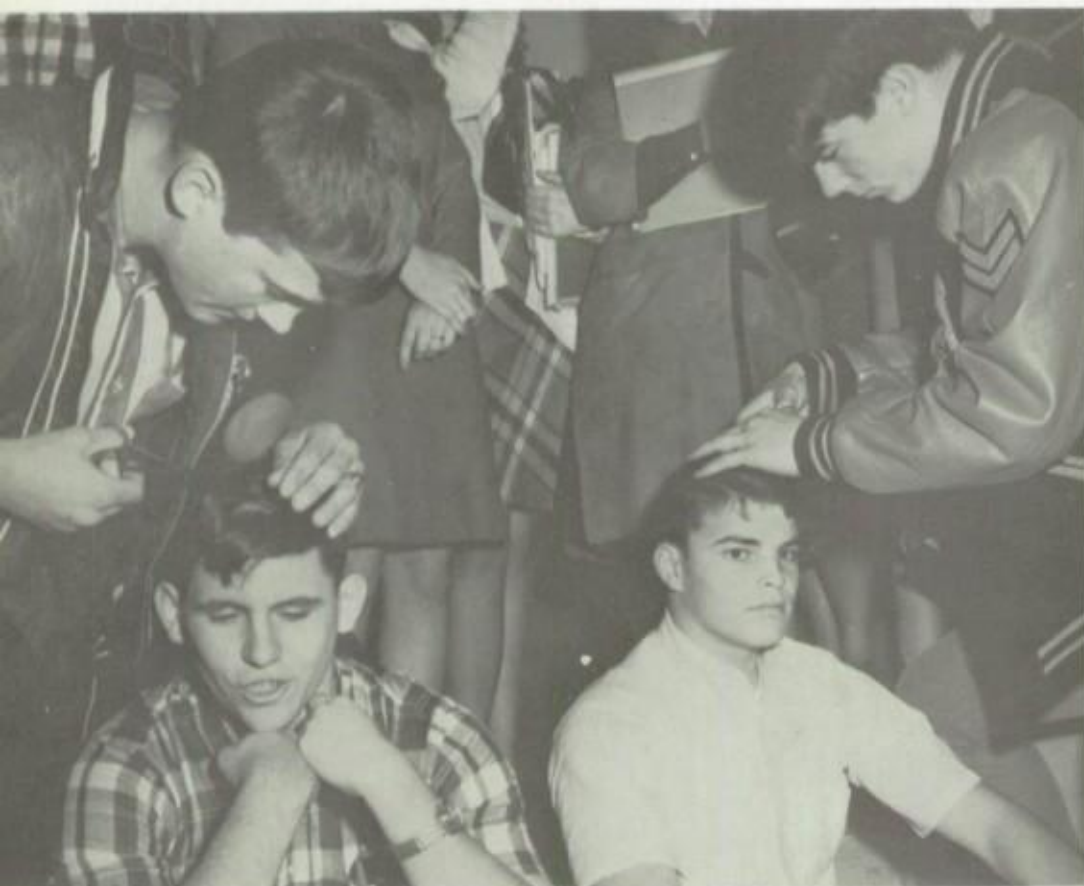

Mod clothing was very "in" this year for both boys and girls. Hip-huggers, paisley prints, wide belts, poor-boy sweaters, baby-doll shoes, saddle oxfords, and wing tips were just some of the many styles that passed through the halls of high school. Girls' accessories included yarn ribbons, net stockings, flower pins, and box purses.

In jewelry, St. Christopher medals were popular. Girls wore wide watch bands and pendant watches.

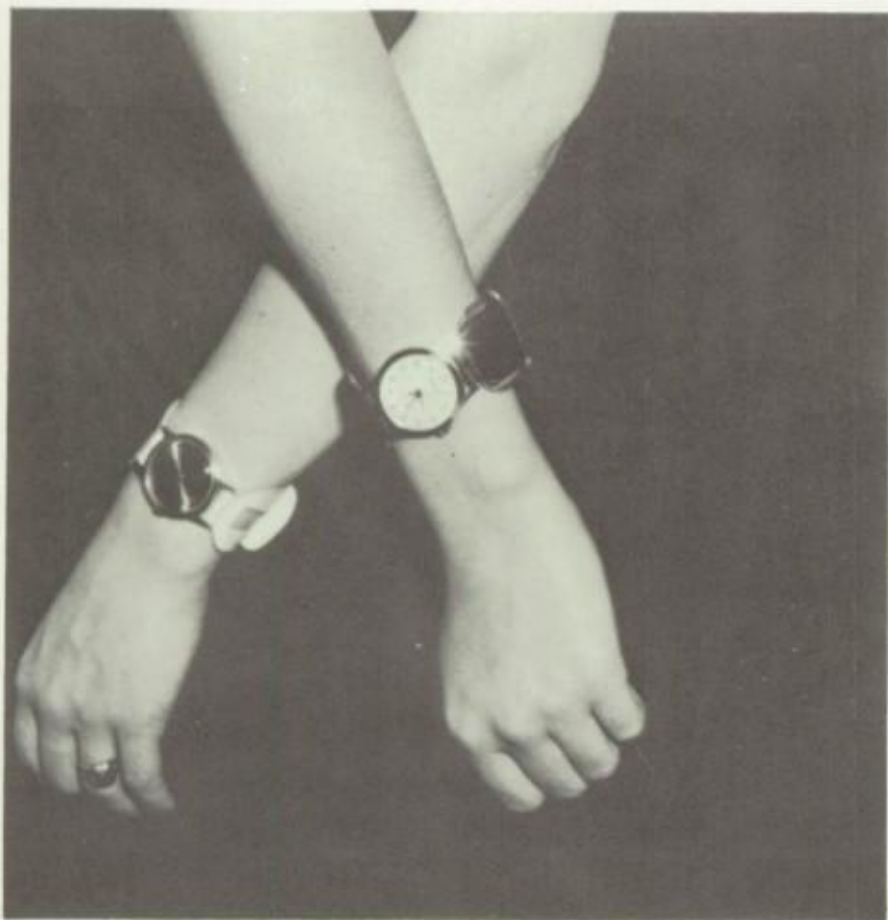

Girls who had not previously conjured enough courage to get their ears pierced did so this year. There were earrings of all shapes, sizes, and descriptions.

Other fads which swept through high school were papier-maché pins and flowers on girls' knees.

New lettermen find the price of this "T" haircut reasonable, although they hope that next year they will be on the other end of the scissors.

Drab lockers aren't always just overflowing with too many books; sometimes they are blossoming with spring scenes.

Watches with big dials and colorful bands make headway with a number of fashion-minded girls.

The displaying of "his and hers" rings means: "Hands off, girls! He's taken."

Short mini-dresses, wild stockings, and long hair create an interesting attraction when they get past the administration.

Long hair tied up with colorful yarn receives approving smiles and looks.

MRS. LEWIS
Director of Cafeterias

Randy Arnold receives a hot lunch in the high school cafeteria.

Lunch break offers "pause that refreshes"

Food is the most important word for students when the 11:45 lunch bell rings. The halls are quickly filled with people as they madly rush to their lunch-time destinations. Besides the cafeteria, many places are found by the students where they are able to eat their lunches. During pleasant weather, the wall and lawns in front of the school building are covered by those who like to eat outdoors in the sunshine.

One reason the students love their lunch hour is that it gives them a break in their daily routines. After eating, they crowd the halls to join in on conversations and to exchange gossip. The warning bell at 12:20 tells everyone that lunch time is over and that it is time to start afternoon classes.

Senior girls rule the cafeteria from their designated table.

Some students grab a quick lunch from various vending machines.

"Footsie" Britt addresses football banquet

Fathers of all the football players and their sons assembled in December for the annual Football Banquet, given by the Trojan Booster Club. This year it was held in the Trojan Hall of the Velda Rose Towers.

Speakers were "Footsie" Britt and "Swede" Lee, an assistant football coach at the University of Oklahoma.

Awards were presented to the most valuable players for the 1966-67 Trojan team: Most Valuable Lineman, Larry Lawson; Most Valuable Back, Charles Durham; Fighting Heart, Byrum Hurst.

Lieutenant Governor "Footsie" Britt is honored guest of the Trojan football team.

The award for the Outstanding Trojan Back is presented by Coach Tommy Brasher to Charles Durham.

A mass of masculinity—football players relax before the meal begins (a calm stomach holds more steak).

Sports

"The thrill of victory and the agony of defeat . . ." are ingrained in an athlete's emotions. These feelings are present in all sports, whether a tense golf match or a fast-moving basketball game. As a cheer says, "Whether we win or whether we lose . . ." the lasting rewards from competing in sports are noble sportsmanship and the glory of making a true effort.

Football season filled with cheers and tears

In spite of decreasing numbers and discouraging odds, the Trojans made this a successful season. Injuries took their toll; but as the number of players continued to drop, spirit and effort remained high. The final game of the season left the Trojans with a record of 0-12.

In the first game the Leopards of Malvern took advantage of Trojan mistakes to cinch their first win.

Trailing by fourteen points in the first half, Trojan tailback Bryum Hurst scored from the 1-yard line, and later quarterback Jimmy Leatherman hit end Alan Thurman with a pass to tie the score.

After a poor second half, the Trojans lost by a score of 35-14.

Hot Springs turned two pass interceptions into touchdowns to narrow the Jacksonville Red Devils' lead to 14-13. But late in the fourth period the Red Devils scored again. Byrum Hurst and Jackie Bales led a Trojan surge to the Devils' 2-yard line to set up a score by Larry Lynch.

In the third period linebacker Charles Durham intercepted a Red Devil pass at the Devils' 26 and sprinted over for the TD. The PAT by Adams was good.

In the final quarter, a field goal attempt by Adams was off, and the game closed at 21-13.

Glorious never-die plays

Over three thousand persons saw the Pine Bluff Zebras blank the Trojans for their first home loss, after a twenty-minute blackout of the field lights. Pine Bluff scored twice in the first period.

In the third period both teams took to the air, but little yardage was made because of penalties. With 7:16 left on the clock, the Zebras scored again to make the score 19-0. Later in the last quarter another Zebra attempt was stopped at the 2-yard line when Bill McBride recovered a Pine Bluff fumble. This loss left the Trojans with a 0-3-0 record.

The first half of the Benton game proved to be a rewarding and hopeful one for the Men of Troy. At the close of the half the Trojans were in the lead 7-0. The TD was a result of a 32-yard pass from Jimmy Leatherman to Robbie McCrary, which was followed by a short dash by quarterback Jimmy Leatherman. Don Hicks converted for the PAT. After some injuries which altered the Trojan line-up, the Panthers took advantage of a crippled team and scored twice in the second half to win the game 14-7.

The Spa Trojans faced the nimble Tigers of Little Rock Central for their fifth game. Throughout the first three quarters, the Trojan defense could not hold back the onslaught of the Tigers. The Tigers scored once in three periods, but none of the PATs were good. In addition to these points of the Tigers, the officials awarded them two more for a safety.

Finally in the fourth quarter the Trojans began to gain ground. The Men of Troy fought their way to the 14-yard line of Central, after an interception by Larry Lynch on the Trojans' own 10. This drive was halted when the Trojans ran out of downs. The final score was 20-0.

The Trojans took on the Razorbacks of Texarkana for their first conference game. The half closed in a 7-7 tie, but the game ended in defeat for the Trojans. The Razorbacks took advantage of two fumbles by the Trojans to score and stop a Trojan drive.

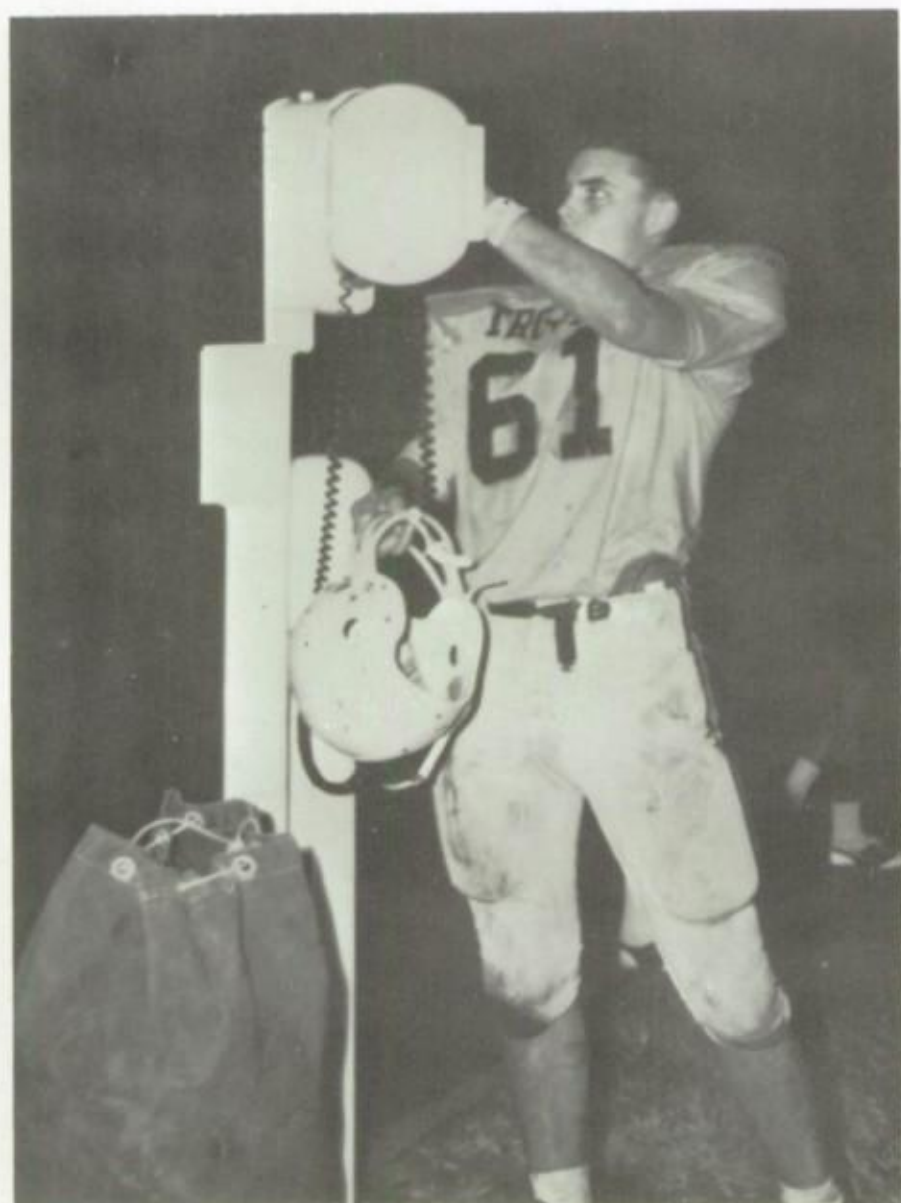

The first play of the second quarter, quarterback Byrum Hurst catapulted over the goal line from the 3. John Adams made a successful conversion to tie the score.

A long run and two passes gave the Razorbacks a 25-7 lead midway in the fourth period. Late in the same quarter the Trojans made a desperation attempt, but time ran out. The final score was 25-7.

Two seniors selected

A rain-soaked crowd watched the number two team in the state beat the valiant Men of Troy. The Fort Smith Northside Grizzlies scored three times in the first three periods. After a Trojan punt the Grizzlies drove to the Troy 3-yard line from their 45. A fumble by the Grizzlies was recovered by HS.

The Grizzlies again drove to the Trojans' 3, where the Trojans recovered another fumble on the 4-yard line. The Trojans were unable to move the ball against this superb team.

Late in the fourth period, after another Fort Smith score, the Men of Troy drove to the Bears' 25-yard line, but a fumble on the Grizzly 22 killed the drive. The final score of this game was 26-0.

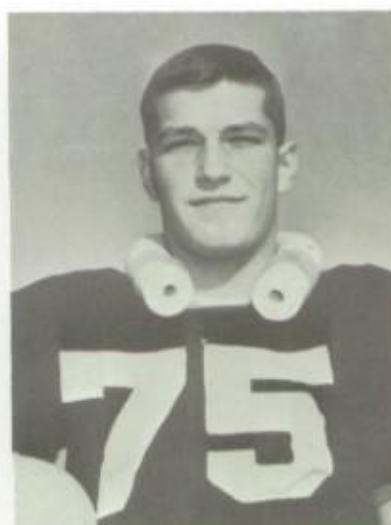

During half time, the pert T-Steppers performed despite mud and water. The support of the Trojans was also very great by the spectators, who braved a heavy down-pour and cold wind to see this game.

A spirited Homecoming crowd watched as Trojans gave their prime effort against Smackover.

Late in the first period the Trojans received a punt and rambled to the Buckaroos' 15-yard line. Then Byrum Hurst tossed a beautiful pass to Burgess Burch, who flew in for the TD. The PAT was missed, and the score stood at 6-0.

The second half saw a fumble by Hot Springs on the Smackover 32-yard line become the basis for the Bucks' first score. A Trojan punt was deflected by Smackover, and the ball rolled to the Trojan 2-yard line, where Smackover recovered. A heartbroken Homecoming royalty watched as the Buckaroos scored the winning TD.

Sophomore quarterback Ronnie Roach piloted a Trojan drive to the Smackover 7, where he was hit and lost possession of the ball as the clock ran out. The final score was 13-6.

Solemn faces fill the locker room after Junior Varsity game.

The Men of Troy faced the number six-ranked Bulldogs of Fayetteville for their ninth game. The Bulldogs scored twice in the second quarter. After the kick-off following the second score, a fumble by Hurst lost the ball to Fayetteville on the Trojan 22-yard line. The Bulldogs scored again. An identical situation occurred on the next kick-off, and the Bulldogs picked up six points.

By the half, the Trojans were down by a score of 41-0. In the third period Larry Lynch carried the kick-off for a 46-yard run and then later passed 19 yards to Bill Randel for the TD. John Adams kicked the PAT. The final score of this butchering was 55-7.

The disheartened Trojans found themselves against the Bulldogs of Springdale, November 4. Springdale scored on every type of play possible: a long run, a short run, and a pass. The Men of Troy crossed mid-field only twice the entire game. This was the tenth straight loss for the Hot Springs Trojans. The final score was 34-0.

The Trojans faced the task of battling the Rebels of Fort Smith Southside in their next game. Since the Trojans were terribly outweighed, a quick-thinking and fast-moving backfield had to trick and out-maneuver the Rebels in order to make any yardage. Two quarterbacks combined their skills to make a great showing on ground gains. Ronnie Roach played in the quarterback's slot while he threw to another quarterback, Byrum Hurst, who was playing a deceptive halfback. Hurst was the chief ground gainer for the Trojans, receiving screen passes from Roach and barreling down the sideline for those precious yards. By the third quarter the Men of Troy were down only 12 points, but before the quarter was over, the score stood at 33-0. The never-die Trojans kept trying for the score, although those efforts were fruitless. A Rebel field goal in the fourth quarter ran the score to 36-0, which was the way it remained.

The Hot Springs Trojans were looking for their first victory of the season as they faced El Dorado in the last game of the year.

Byrum Hurst struggled over the goal line from the 3-yard line with only twenty-one seconds left on the clock, but an extra point attempt failed. Earlier in the period the Wildcats had made the first points of the game. Later John Adams boomed a long punt, which was dropped by an El Dorado back on the 40; Jackie Bales snatched up the loose ball and scored, but the ball was called back under a rule that a player can not advance a muffed punt. This technicality cost the Trojans a score that could have made them the victors. The Trojans still scored but missed the PAT and forfeited even a chance for the tie. The score in the final game was 6-7. Although the '66-'67 season was not a particularly desirable one, it did create a new "first." For the first time at the end of the season there was not a separate "B" team squad. Because of the need for players, the varsity and "B" teams merged. The sophomores were playing two games a week for the greater part of the season, many of them playing the entirety of both games. Congratulations should go to these boys for their devotion and never-die attitude. This experience should result next year in the most seasoned team that HSHS has ever had.

The Trojan cagers moved to the court with eight returning senior players. Each opponent of the Trojans was played twice, once at home and once away.

December 6, the Trojans met North Little Rock for their first home game. The tenseness of the home court rattled the Trojans and they lost 31-45. Terry Reed was the Trojan high scorer with 17 points.

The next Friday, the Men of Troy challenged Fort Smith Southside. The result was a 45-46 loss. Steve Baldwin and Terry Reed were the high point men with 8 and 24 points respectively.

The Pine Bluff Zebras returned home a defeated team after a visit to the Spa, as Reed, Baldwin, and Bales pumped in 14, 12, and 11 points for the Trojans.

As Christmas drew near, the Trojans presented the McClellan Lions with a seasonal loss as their Christmas gift. The Trojan high point scorer was Browne with 12.

"B" Team scraps for rebound — "Just like the big boys."

The Trojan "B" basketball team was not to be out done this year; so it racked up a seasonal record of 11-13. Though this record is not as good as the varsity's, the irony comes when it is discovered that the "B" team beat a number of the teams that the varsity lost to.

Each minute in meet

As the cool winds of early spring begin to blow, figures in sweat clothes appear from everywhere. These men of the thin-clad ranks are never really out of season; for most of them, running is a year-round practice. Track, of all sports in today's high schools, is the least rewarding as a spectator sport, as it is an individual's competition with himself and the clock.

The Trojan track team has had not more than seventeen men running at any one time. As in football, injuries have cost the team several valuable men. From the total of seventeen men on the track team, ten are seniors. This majority of the team will be gone next year and leave quite a hole to be filled.

This year's season will consist of twelve meets. The most outstanding of these so far has been the Trojan Relays, in which the Trojans finished third. The Meet of Champions, to be held later, will place the top men in each event in the entire state against one another for a showdown.

Track is the last sport of the school year and therefore the least noticed. Those boys who run the spike trail give up their week-end dates and many hours both in the afternoon and at daybreak to meet with training requirements. With its small number of members, the Trojan track team is truly a group of quality, since quantity is almost a void.

Who are those young men who are always seen dressed in all white? Are they any relation to the Ajax white knight? They are the five men of the Trojan tennis team. They spend each afternoon on the tennis courts, competing with each other for the three top places on the roster. These places are changed several times a week because of the keen competition. The top four men play in the regular matches; but when the most important match of the year comes at the state tournament in April, only three can play. The loss of senior players Mike Sharp, Bill Hurd, James Grisham, and Joel Campbell will leave Coach Caristianos in need of replacements for the team next year. Dennis Campbell will be the only returning player.

Intramurals make

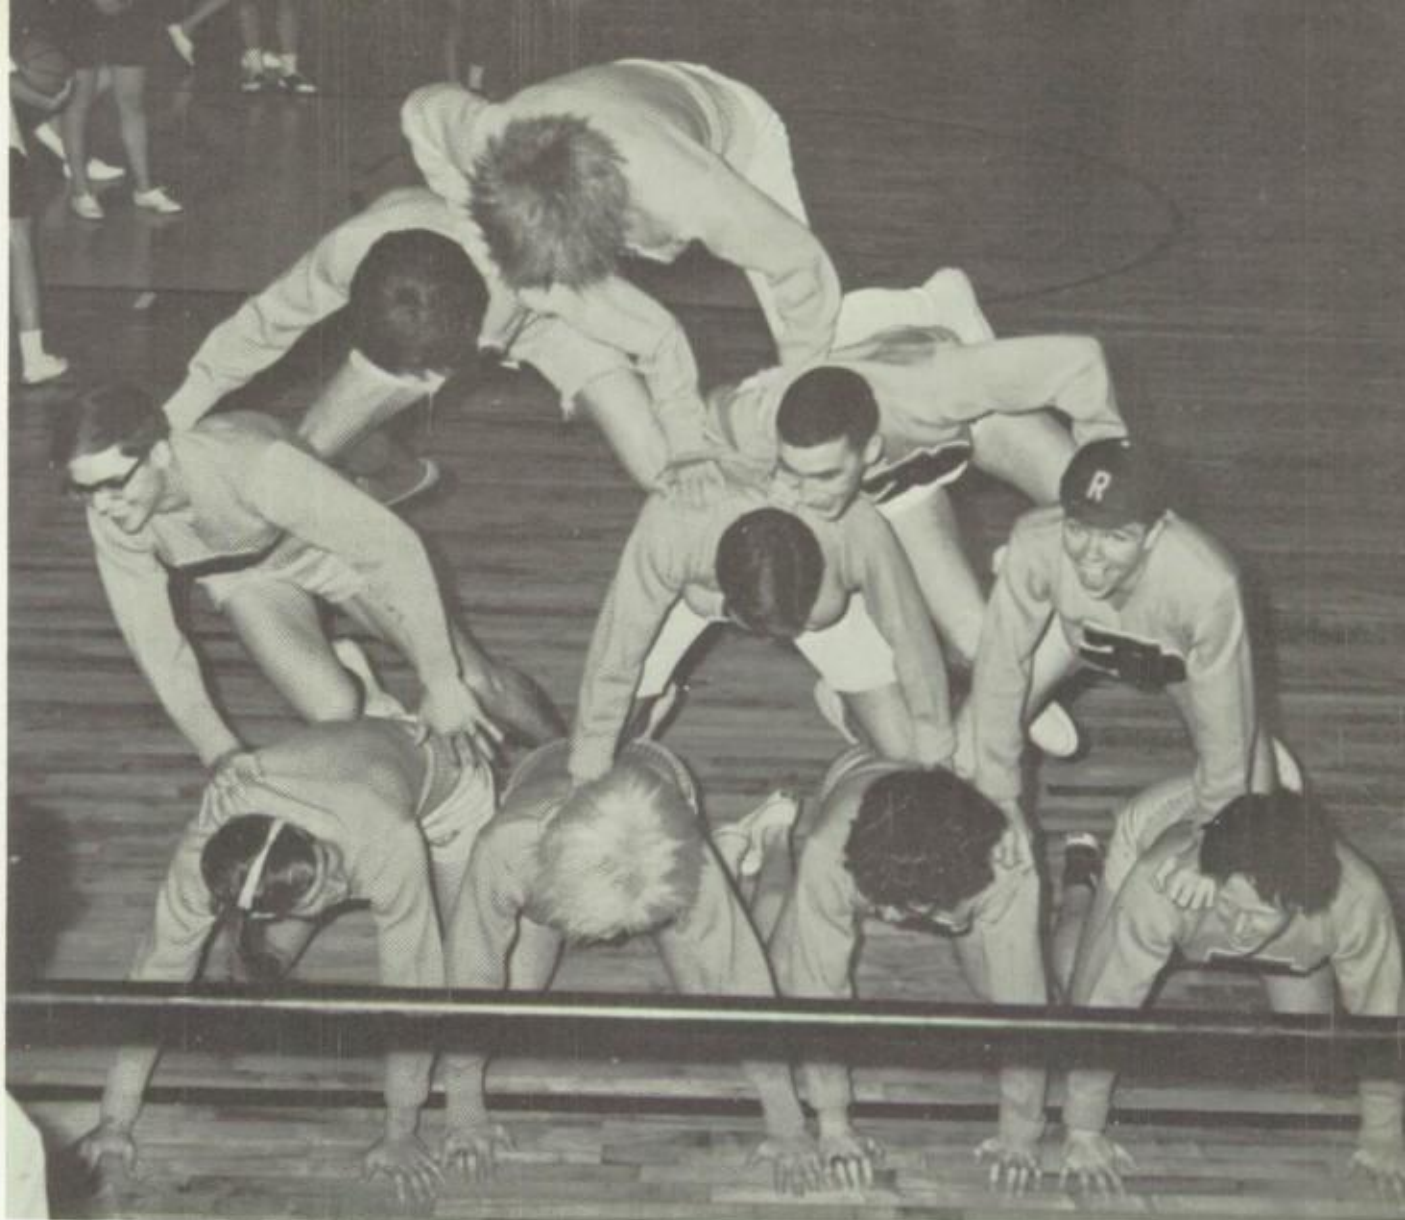

Fun and surprises came this year each time a club or organization played against another in a sport event.

The highlight of the high school intramurals was the hilarious "powderpuff" game featuring the T-Steppers and Cheerleaders against the Pep Squad. Even though the Pep Squaders fought courageously, they were unable to overrun their hustling opponents. The money raised from this game was donated to the March of Dimes.

To help raise money for equipment for the athletic department, the VITA Club challenged the men teachers to a basketball game. The teachers outscored the boys in this battle.

The GRA gave many girls an opportunity to compete with their club against girls in other clubs. During the year they played in volleyball and kickball tournaments.

Career Club kickball tournament winners include Sandy Winn, Patti Jo Warr, Martha Sanders and Jennifer Lewis.

Members of the winning GRA volleyball team are Cheerleaders Nita Lynn Terrell, Barbie Bischof, Sandy Winn, Nancy Mills, Stella Stathakis and Lyndy Browning.

Golfers so far unbeaten

The clanking of metal against metal and the switch of a shaft of a driver are familiar sounds to the eight men who make the golf team the success that it is. This team is thus far the only undefeated team on campus. In regular meets with other schools across the state, these men have come from each one victorious. The Western Open

High School Tournament and the annual State Tournament are the high points of this golf season. If things progress in the manner in which they are at the present time, the golf team should and could take the top honors in both of these big tournaments.

Variety and growth aptly describe clubs. Organizations in each department are open to students who wish to expand their outlook and to participate in worthy activities. Student leaders prove servants of all Student Council officers beautify the school grounds by planting a Tennessee pine tree.

The Student Council is the voice of the entire student body. It is composed of representatives from every homeroom and the chief executive officers of the school's clubs and organizations. Looked on with distinction and high esteem, our Student Council was one of two chosen to be observed by a professor from Rice University, who is writing a book on governing bodies of high schools in the South.

Among the many projects sponsored by the Student Council this year were Twirp Week, King and Queen of Hearts, and Football and Basketball Homecomings. Committees saw that College Night, Medical Careers Night, and Teacher Appreciation Day were successful. A suggestion box was made accessible to all so that every student might be able to present ideas to the council. One highlight of the year's activities was a hilarious powder-puff basketball game between the Pep Squad and the T-Steppers and Cheerleaders. All proceeds from the game went to the March of Dimes.

The annual project of donating Thanksgiving baskets to needy families was another success. The council judged the decorated homeroom doors and gave out Santa Claus tags during the Christmas season.

Student Council money is entrusted to Peggy May, this year's efficient treasurer.

Scholarly leadership characterizes NHS members

Intellects of Honor Society gather to discuss plans for the Queen of Hearts Dance.

One of the greatest honors for a student to achieve is acceptance into the National Honor Society, because to become eligible to join, one must obtain a high grade average. A junior must have a grade average of 3.5, while a senior is allowed to join with a 3.2 average.

An impressive initiation was held for the students who had been invited to join NHS this year. The four officers of the club informed the new members of the society's goals: character, scholarship, leadership, and service. Parents were cordially invited to attend the initiation in order to witness the recognition being given to the high achievements of their sons and daughters.

Among the activities sponsored by NHS were College Night and the King and Queen of Hearts Dance. One worthwhile project of the club was a tutorship program for those students who found certain subjects unusually difficult and were not satisfied with their grades.

Anchor Club—"Anchored to service for others"

"Anchored to service for others" is a motto which is truly representative of the Anchor Club. This organization, which is sponsored by the Pilot Club, was created in 1957 and has since been devoted to community and school service. Membership is based on a girl's character, scholastic ability, and qualities of leadership.

Throughout the year the members continually gave their time to further such worthwhile projects as ringing bells for the Salvation Army, working on the Cystic Fibrosis Drive, selling candy and bread for the March of Dimes, visiting convalescent homes, and helping a welfare family. One activity which brought much enjoyment and pleasure to the girls was presenting a program for the Pilot Club's meeting. They gave a skit entitled "The Perfect Dolly" in which the Anchor doll outshone the rest of the dolls in Mr. Watkins' toy shop.

The Anchor Club again participated in this year's Christmas Parade. With the theme "The Greatest Story Ever Told," its float was able to take the fourth-place prize.

Career Club adopts new name—Nike

The principal innovation of great concern to the junior and senior members of Career Club was the changing of its name to the Nike Career Club. The Nike Statue, the symbol of Winged Victory, is the emblem of the club's sponsor, the Business and Professional Women's Club.

Discussion of diverse careers and professions by speakers attending their bimonthly meetings encouraged the girls to consider lines of work personally suited.

Such worthwhile activities as working on the Salvation Army, Tuberculosis, United Fund, March of Dimes, Cystic Fibrosis drives; entering a float in the Pilot Club's Christmas Parade; distributing voting posters; visiting the Benton State Hospital; serving as pages for the Business and Professional Women's State Convention were undertaken to better the community. In the service of the school many of the girls painted lockers, worked on the calendar and the book exchange, and constructed a Christmas door decoration.

Despite all this activity, the forty-five members of the six-year-old club had time for a senior banquet, an annual picnic, a Christmas party, and a patriotic dinner honoring parents and members of the B. & P.W. Club.

Community service depicts Crown Club ideals

The Crown Club, sponsored by Hot Springs Junior Auxiliary, spent its third year serving the school and community in numerous drives and projects. These included providing food at Thanksgiving for a needy family, donating toys and collecting money for the Salvation Army, and helping with the Cancer Drive. For the March of Dimes, Crown Club volunteers stuffed envelopes and sold bread and candy.

For the second consecutive year, the Crown Club was a winner in the annual Hot Springs Christmas Parade. This year's float, entitled "Christmas with Snow White," won the second-place prize.

Active Key Club marches for polio campaign

In rain or shine the Key Club goes out for the March of Dimes. These eager collectors outdid all other organizations in high school in their collection of money for this drive. Both in the sale of bread and in the sale of mints these service-minded boys turned in more money than any other group. During the March of Dimes Shindig, the Key Club operated concession stands to make even more for that deserving cause.

The Key Club symbolizes character, leadership, and responsibility in young men. Requirements for membership are a C average and a willingness for service. Sponsored by the Kiwanis Club, Key Club strives to better the school and community, and also to give its members plenty of fun.

Key Club members are always willing to collect for a worthy cause like the March of Dimes.

Mu Alpha Thetas probe laws of probability

As fellow club members await their turn, senior Terry Reynolds plays the slot machine in an exciting game of chance at the Math Club meeting.

Mu Alpha Theta provides a club for students with a mutual interest in mathematics. The requirement for membership is a B average in at least five semesters of math.

During the year members were given challenging problems and puzzles to prove their intellectual abilities. They sponsored a postgame dance and cosponsored the administering of a national mathematics test to interested students. Perhaps the highlight of their activities was a meeting on the study of probability. Wheels spun round, and dice clicked as members participated in games of chance and learned the minute probability of winning. Of course there was no exchange of money involved in the program.

Most members of Mu Alpha Theta plan to carry on their study of mathematics in college or in careers.

History Club creates interest in social studies

In its second year of organization the HSHSHS, or Hot Springs High School Historical Society, sponsored by the social studies department, maintained a busy schedule. The club was initially established to stimulate a healthy, widespread interest in and appreciation of social studies. In carrying out this program, the association strives to provide its members with a sound background in natural and political history and to sustain, for the use of the high school students, a museum composed of articles useful in their studies of world, national, and local development.

One project undertaken by the club consisted of delegating four students to attend the regional conference on foreign policies in Little Rock. Fossils, bones, and Indian relics obtained on the club's first field trip were mounted and hung in the school museum as were newspapers, legal documents, and pictures. A club crest and nylon parkas were ordered for club members.

Recently mounted displays of historical events intrigue Linda Grim and Lora Bell.

Bio-Chem-Phy relate

Bio-Chem-Phy Club helps its members relate their studies to their world. It shows students who share a love for science the wisdom of knowledge in its practical applications in the real world in which they live.

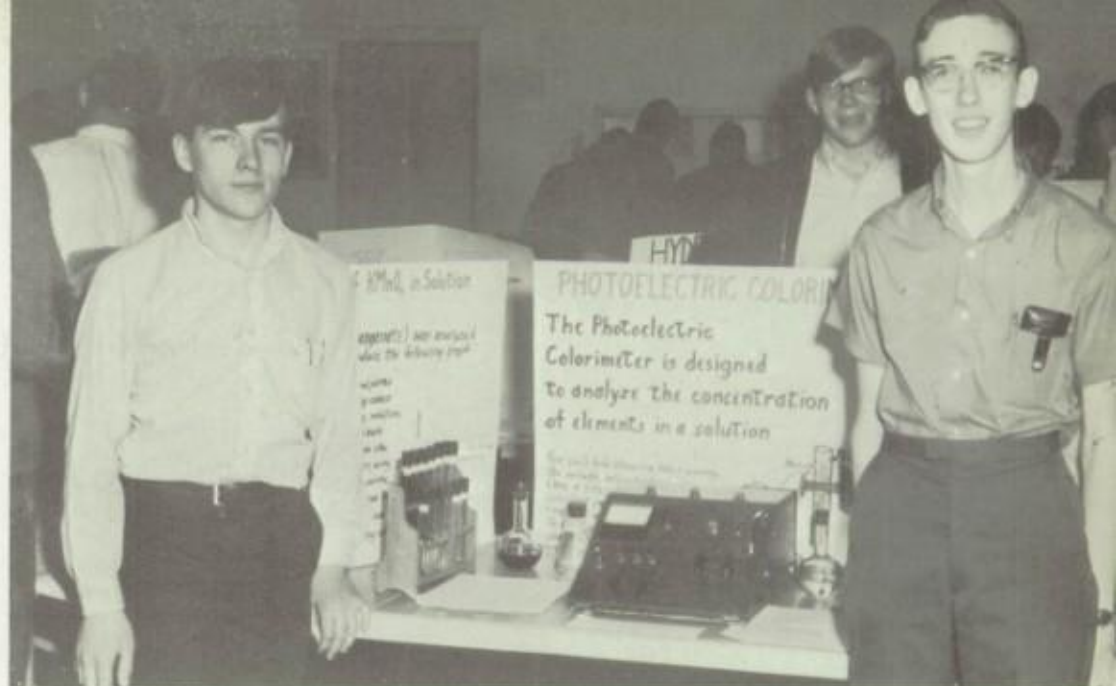

Bio-Chem-Phy members are given opportunities to participate in numerous scholarship programs as well as in competitive events in which the individual student is able to produce something of usefulness from his own mind. The annual Science Fair, sponsored by the Bio-Chem-Phy, was just such an event. This gave the amateur scientists a chance to materialize their ideas in experiments and projects. The many exhibits in the fair covered different phases of such scientific fields as biology, zoology, chemistry, and physics.

Costumed members recall Roman nobility

Food is the main item on the agenda at the JCL banquet, but entertainment is also included.

Students who have studied the Latin language are eligible to join the Junior Classical League. Membership pins and charms were purchased for those who joined.

For a change, this year's initiation was held on the same night as the banquet. The initiation was for those students who had just begun the study of Latin or who had just come to senior high. The second-year members and officers dressed in the costumes of their favorite ancient Roman characters. Talented members of the club who were willing to perform presented a program which helped to make a festive and enjoyable evening. The banquet and initiation took place in the Avanelle Civic Center.

Les Elites spice activities with French culture

Those students who were enrolled in French classes during the year or who had ever studied the language were entitled to become members of Les Elites. The meetings were held on the third Wednesday morning of every month in the French classroom at Lee School.

For a money-making project the French Club sponsored a dance after a football game at Lee Gym. One highlight of the year's activities was an initiation of new members. Other activities of the club included a banquet, held in the late winter, and a picnic at the end of school. Every meeting and every activity of the organization was flavored by culture.

The emblem of Les Elites is a blue and white flower, the fleur-de-lis. It is representative of the beauty of this foreign language. Les Elites, translated, means "the select ones." Les Elites sparks students' interest in France, her customs, people, and language. Charms were ordered as souvenirs of membership in the club.

Los Matadores discover fun and excitement in performing the Spanish ritual of breaking a pinata.

Spanish Club experiences

This year the Spanish Club was divided into two different groups. One was Los Amigos, "the friends," for students in Spanish I. Spanish II Club chose the name Los Matadores, which means "the bullfighters."

To be eligible for membership in either of the two Spanish clubs, it was necessary to be enrolled in a Spanish class and to maintain a C average. The meetings were held the third Wednesday morning of every month.

Realizing the importance of a friendly relationship between all countries in this troubled and progressive world, the Spanish clubs helped promote and encourage correspondence with people in the Spanish-speaking countries. The members wrote to students in Mexico, South America, and Latin America. It not only offered students a chance to learn the culture of Spanish-speaking countries, but also helped them to be better citizens by teaching them the importance of contact with the world around them. The clubs also emphasized Pan American Day on April 14.

Representatives were sent from the clubs to Little Rock in the spring to compete in a state-wide contest. This gave the Spanish Club students a chance to test their Spanish-speaking abilities with student linguists from many schools in Arkansas.

Future Teachers spot Teacher of the Year

To the members of Future Teachers, time spent in high school offers more than mastery of scholastic subjects. It is an opportunity to observe others in the profession which they themselves wish to pursue. Each teacher with whom they come in contact helps them to form a model of the type of educator they wish to become.

Quite an impressive candle-lighting service was held to initiate new members. Activities of the year included sponsoring a dance and selling Trojan pennants. Student teachers were invited to speak to the group and help prepare them for that big step of practice teaching.

Also, to show their appreciation of their teachers, FTA gave a tea for the faculty and announced their choice of the Teacher of the Year—Coach Voris Johnson.

Niann Allbritton and Diane Goltz show their gratitude by distributing posters for Teaching Careers Month.

FHA celebrates anniversary with birthday cake

A tremendous cardboard anniversary cake made by the members of Future Homemakers of America helped them celebrate the twenty-first national anniversary of the local chapter. The event was held this year at Southwest Junior High School.

Monthly meetings gave the girls a variety of programs. Among these were lectures on good grooming, interior decorating, and flower arrangement.

During the year the club members had several parties and projects. They held their annual Christmas party at school in the home economics living room. One of their moneymaking projects was selling toothbrushes. In March representatives from the club attended the State Convention of FHA, which was held in Little Rock.

Social events, state contest enliven VICA year

Mr. Heusel assists Charles Brown with his jacket, which he received for being a State VICA Club officer.

VICA is composed of the various Vocational Industrial Clubs of America. There are two clubs in the school affiliated with VICA, the Diversified Occupations and the Auto Mechanics. VICA is not well known in America, since it is a new national club. This is only its second year.

DO, a course for students to work part-time and go to school part-time, is for junior and seniors. The DO club is made up of these students. One of their main events during the year was the State VICA Convention held in Little Rock in March. Another highlight was the spring Employer-Employee Banquet, where the student showed his appreciation to his employer for his help during the year. Other events included a weiner roast and a Christmas party. The club sponsored a dance after a basketball game as well as several other projects.

DECA represented in State Leadership Contest

Besides their monthly breakfast meetings at the Avanelle, members of DECA — Distributive Education Clubs of America — had various other projects. In April, a banquet was held for employers and employees, at which time certificates were awarded to commendable students.

Metropolitan High School in Little Rock was host for the District Leadership Contest in October. In March, representatives again assembled in Little Rock for the State Leadership Contest, Hot Springs being represented by twelve members of its local DECA.

A board of local businessmen acted in an advisory capacity to assist in providing for DECA members a full and rewarding program.

Regular Thespians know

Membership in the National Thespian Society is not easy to obtain. Regular Thespians attain this honor by first becoming associates, then gaining the required ten points by working one hundred hours on different facets of the dramatic arts.

In doing this, they learn scenic design and construction, working of light and sound equipment, costume and properties styling, and methods of character portrayal.

This year the regulars and associates applied their knowledge and skill to the renovation of the backstage in the Players' Building, the production of the humanistic

n many special school occasions

Sparkling music and precision marching were an unforgettable part of the half-time shows at home football games. Besides performing at ball games, the band played at the Band Variety Show and the annual Christmas assembly.

The Regional Festival was an opportunity for the band and individual players to gain constructive criticism and to receive a division rating. The Trojan Band's high rating enabled it to participate in the State Band Festival, which was held here in Hot Springs. When the members were not performing, they served as judge assistants, guides, and runners.

Members were also able to be judged on their musical abilities at the district tryouts, held in Little Rock. First- and second-division medals gave them the chance to continue and to compete for All-State Band.

During the last of April, the band traveled to Pensacola, Florida, for its trip, which occurs every three years. At Pensacola the band paraded and gave a concert for the public.

Select band groups add color to school life

Select band groups added much to the year's activities. The Pep Band attended all out-of-town football games and played for all pep rallies and pep assemblies. In addition, it supplied the music for the City Park dedication and the Senior Citizen Center dedication.

The Stardusters, composed of band members who auditioned for their positions, entertained at the Teachers' Banquet, the Football Banquet, the Band Variety Show, and such special assemblies as Homecoming and King and Queen of Hearts.

Two ensembles, the German Band and the TeQuila Tin, also performed at the Band Variety Show. The TeQuila Tin entertained at the Teachers' Banquet and on several occasions at the Hi-Rise Tower.

The heart of the Trojan Band is the Band Key Club. Members of the band for one year who have participated in all the band's projects and who have attended all of its practices are entitled to become members. Its goal is to develop fraternity among the students in the band and to assist the school and community whenever possible.

Trojan Chorus climaxe

During its annual Spring Concert on March 30 and 31, the Trojan Chorus charmed its audience — first with lovely young girls in elegant pastel gowns and handsome young men donned in white dinner jackets, then by magnificent sounds.

The captivated audience was thoroughly entertained by the selection of the Troubadours, the Toreadors, and the Traveling Chorus. The first half of the concert, which was of a serious tone, was climaxed by "America the Beautiful."

After a fifteen-minute intermission, the chorus opened the second and lighter half of its concert with "Smile, Darn Ya, Smile." Mike Pearce, Chris Walthall, and Bob McFarland entertained with three folk songs. Bob McFarland performed an excellent guitar solo of "Malaquena" with Mike and Chris as accompanists. "Sound of Music" was the crowning touch to an exciting concert.

After the final performance on Friday night, Mrs. Ellis was presented with roses, champagne, and a gold charm by her appreciative chorus.

Early Saturday morning, the Traveling Chorus meet at the school for their trip to the District Festival in Little Rock.

Traveling Chorus combines the best

Keeping up with the usual Trojan tradition, this year's Traveling Chorus was able to achieve a high rating among vocal leaders in the state. It was composed of the Toreadors and Troubadours, who performed at various functions both in and out of town.

Members of the Troubadours are chosen with consideration given to character and grade points as well as to vocal ability. These girls must maintain a grade average of 85 per cent to remain in the group.

The Toreadors, who are the select boy vocalists, must keep their grade average at 75 per cent or above. They, too, are chosen on character and personality.

GRA offers fun and excitement to all girls

This year, 125 girls joined the school's newest organization. Its name, GRA, stands for Girls' Recreation Association. The primary purpose of the club is to give high school girls an opportunity, which they otherwise might not have, to compete in various sports and activities. Membership is open to all girls.

The club's activities this year consisted mainly of tournaments in various sports such as volleyball, jacks, kickball, and swimming. Teams were organized according to clubs; for example, a Beta Club member played on the Beta Club team. Points for various activities and duties were awarded on an individual basis. These points were given for playing in the games, refereeing games, and attending meetings. Various prizes were awarded for the different point totals; a jacket, for example, required twenty-five points.

Various states of attention are evident in this GRA volleyball game.

Peppiest leader

Showing pep and enthusiasm, the Trojan Cheerleaders emphatically lead the student body at a noontime pep rally.

One of the most active groups around school is the Cheerleaders. Throughout the entire summer months they practiced, preparing their cheers so that by the time September came, they were eager and anxious to go.

During the year the Cheerleaders did their best to boost Trojan Spirit. They led the pep assemblies and arranged skits for the programs. They attended every basketball and football game and every track meet and continued, no matter what the circumstances, to give the teams their loyal and undying support.

The peppy Cheerleaders found plenty of time for other activities. They represented Hot Springs very well during their week at the Cheerleader camp that was held in the summer months. A dance at school was sponsored by the Cheerleaders.

The athletic-minded girls also enthusiastically participated in various sports. They had a team entered in the Girls' Recreation Association for kickball, volleyball, basketball, softball, and other competition. Because of their team spirit, they were able to do well in each of the sports.

Precision-perfect T-Steppers color parades

With pompons ready, feet together, and smiling faces, the T-Steppers are ready to begin another performance.

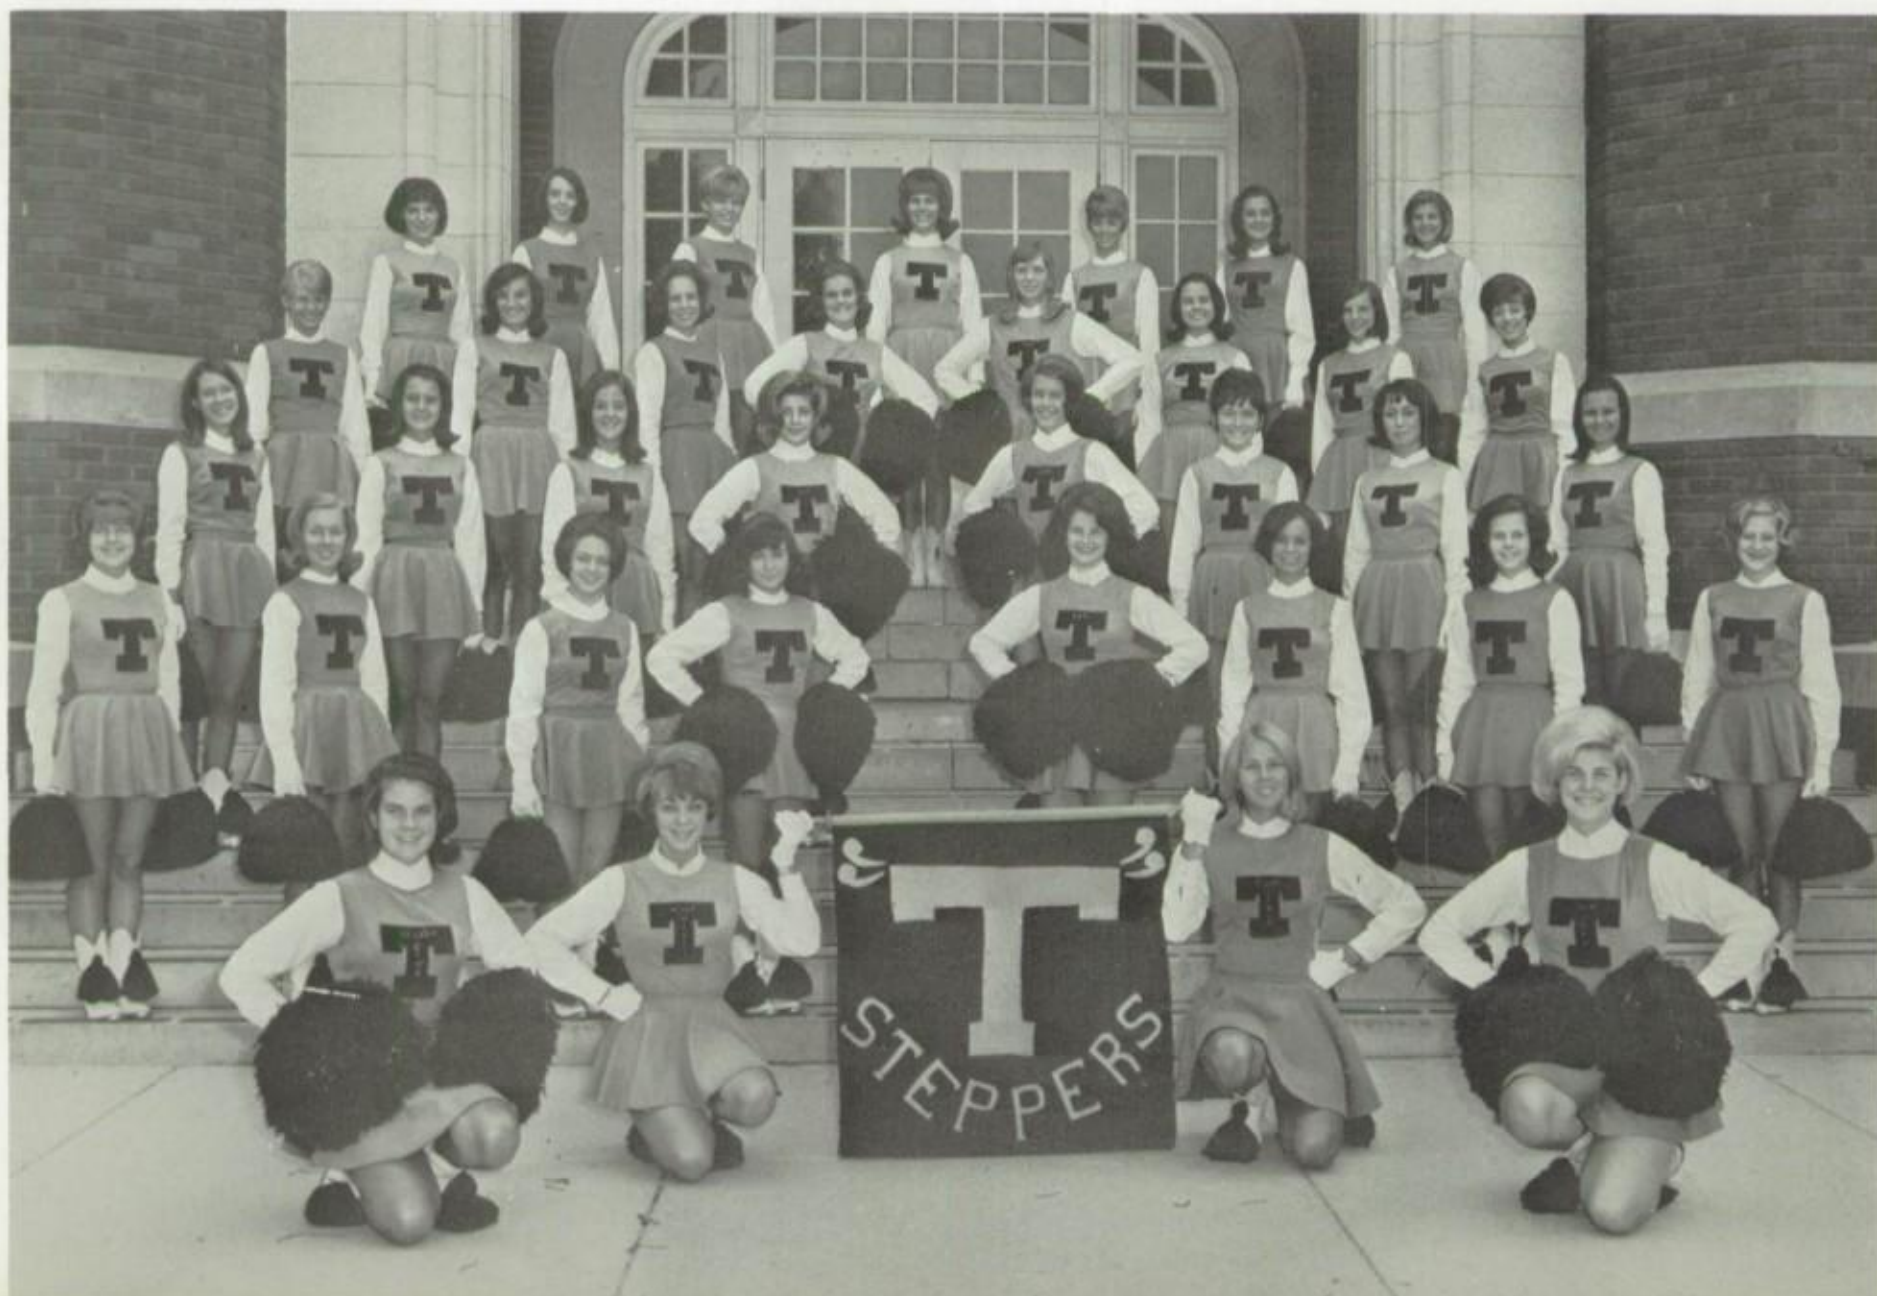

Practice began early in the summer for the T-Steppers as they worked long hours preparing routines for the coming year. The hard work, toil, and lengthy practice sessions night and day finally paid off for the girls, though. Their reward came in the form of enthusiasm, admiration, and applause when they gave their performances to the cheering crowds at football and basketball games and at pep assemblies. They also marched in many parades during the year.

In their gold uniforms, the T-Steppers made a colorful line as they marched onto the football field or the field house floor. Their precision drills more than helped to increase the spirit for the Trojan team. Occasionally a tassel was lost off a stomping boot or a pompon was dropped, but the would-be disaster was taken by the T-Steppers with a smile.

In addition to performing, the T-Steppers had other projects. A dance in Lee Gym, with the Generations from Little Rock playing, was given during January.

Clad in black, white, and gold uniforms, the Pep Squad girls spread spirit and enthusiasm to the surrounding crowds at the football and basketball games. Setting their hand motions to the music of the Pep Band, and rippling their pompons at the command of the squad captain, the Pep Squaders displayed their loyalty and support to the Trojan team.

VITA Club dedicated to good sportsmanship

Boys who possess enough Trojan Spirit and "get-up-and-go" to complete, with good standing, one season of the competitive sports at our high school are entitled to join the Victory in Trojan Athletics Club, better known as VITA Club.

Participating members sponsor fund-raising activities throughout the year. By the money raised through these and through the paying of their dues, the boys contribute equipment to the athletic department. This year they contributed boxing gloves and wrestling mats.

Among the goals of VITA Club is the determination of the boys to promote good sportsmanship throughout the school. They also endeavor to improve the scholastic and moral standards of HSHS students.

VITA Club was organized in 1965, and since that time has achieved each goal with the spirit expected of a Trojan. It is an honor to be in VITA Club, and the members realize this and work to uphold its good reputation.

Revived TORCHLIGHT flames again in '67

The Hot Springs High School TORCHLIGHT proved this year that it absolutely would not die. First lit forty-nine years ago, it has flickered a few times but has never completely gone out.

Through years of hard work and deficit, the TORCHLIGHT has brought the news to the students. An outlet for student opinion, factual accounts of sports events, social and club news, and humorous accounts of day-to-day confusion—this is the TORCHLIGHT, but not in its entirety. The TORCHLIGHT is backed by interested students with the ability and willingness to work as a team with a serious-minded sponsor who ties the team together and “Bonds” it to the administration.

Through lack of a sponsor the TORCHLIGHT circulated only during second semester. All agree that the TORCHLIGHT newspaper is a needed and appreciated asset of the school.

Library Club members find efficiency saves time

One of the duties of Library Club members is to type and file a card for each book in the library.

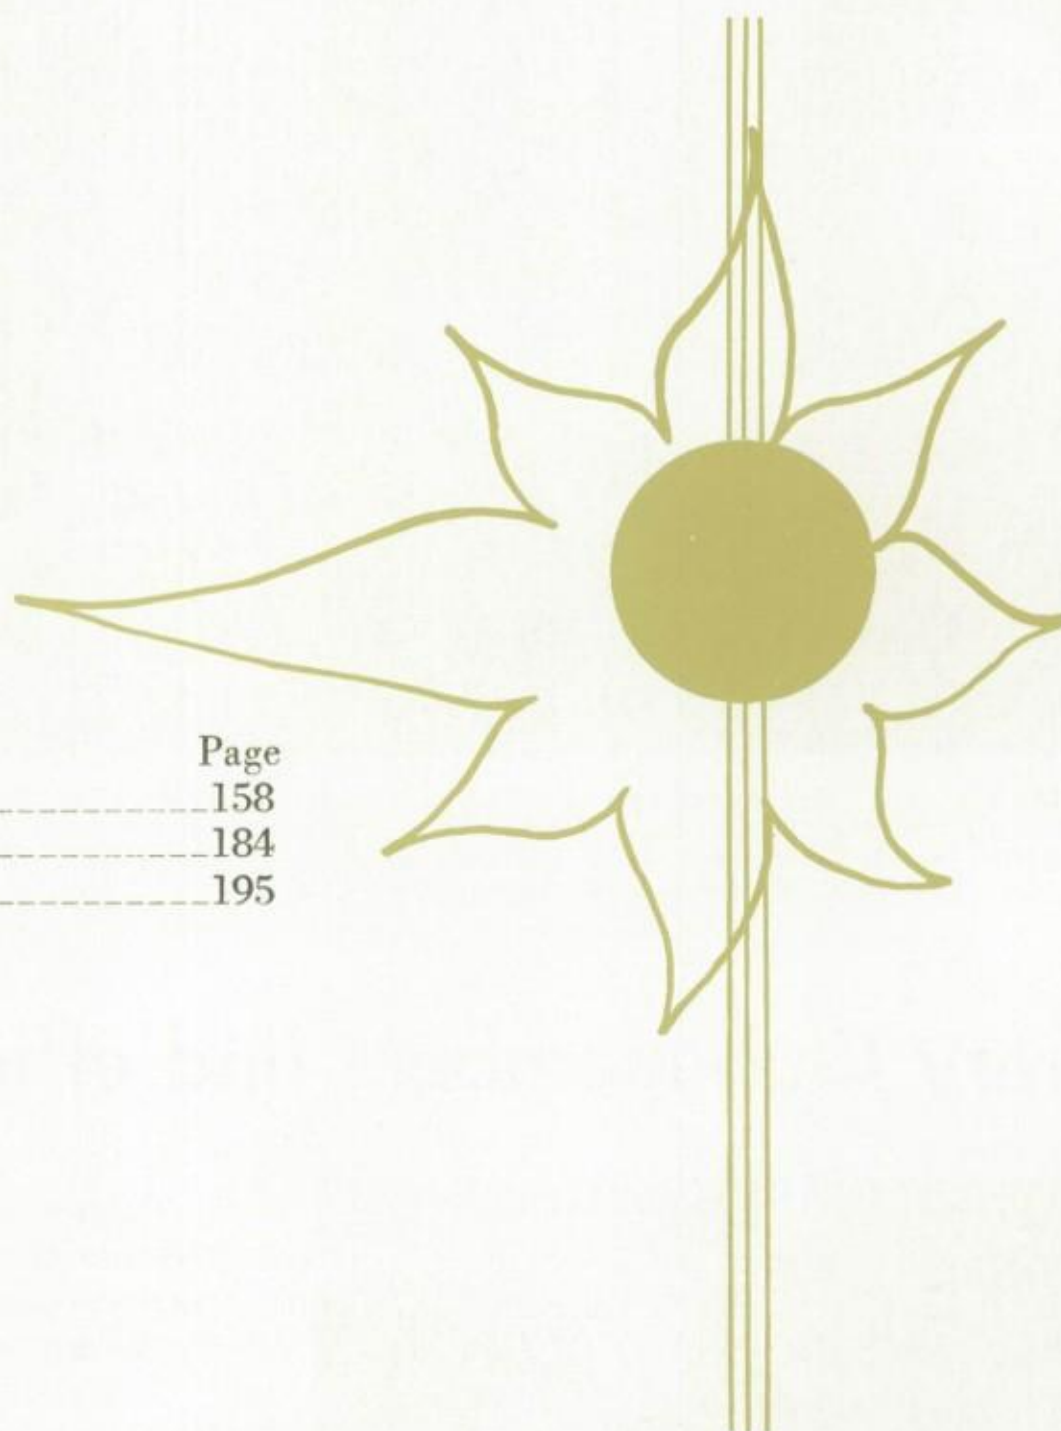

Cooperation and initiative are two qualities characteristic of members of the Library Club. One of the purposes of the club is to promote better relations between the students and faculty and the library.

It is the duty of all members to learn how to run a library effectively. They are also encouraged to consider seriously the possibility of entering the library profession. Although being in the club entails a great deal of work — checking books in and out, filing cards, running a magazine room, and helping students — it is not all work: the club has various activities, such as a party at Christmas and at the end of the year.

Underlying all these duties and activities is the aim of the club: to assist the librarian in keeping the library running smoothly and efficiently.

The splendor of beauty . . .

Taking a long hard look at life with its successes and failures, its uncertainties and realities brings an awareness of the fact that a person's constant companions help to mold his character and personality. The true beauty of the inner person reflects, not in his face, but in his actions.

Beautiful is the friend who . . .

Has the ability to appreciate whatever is noble and loving in you.

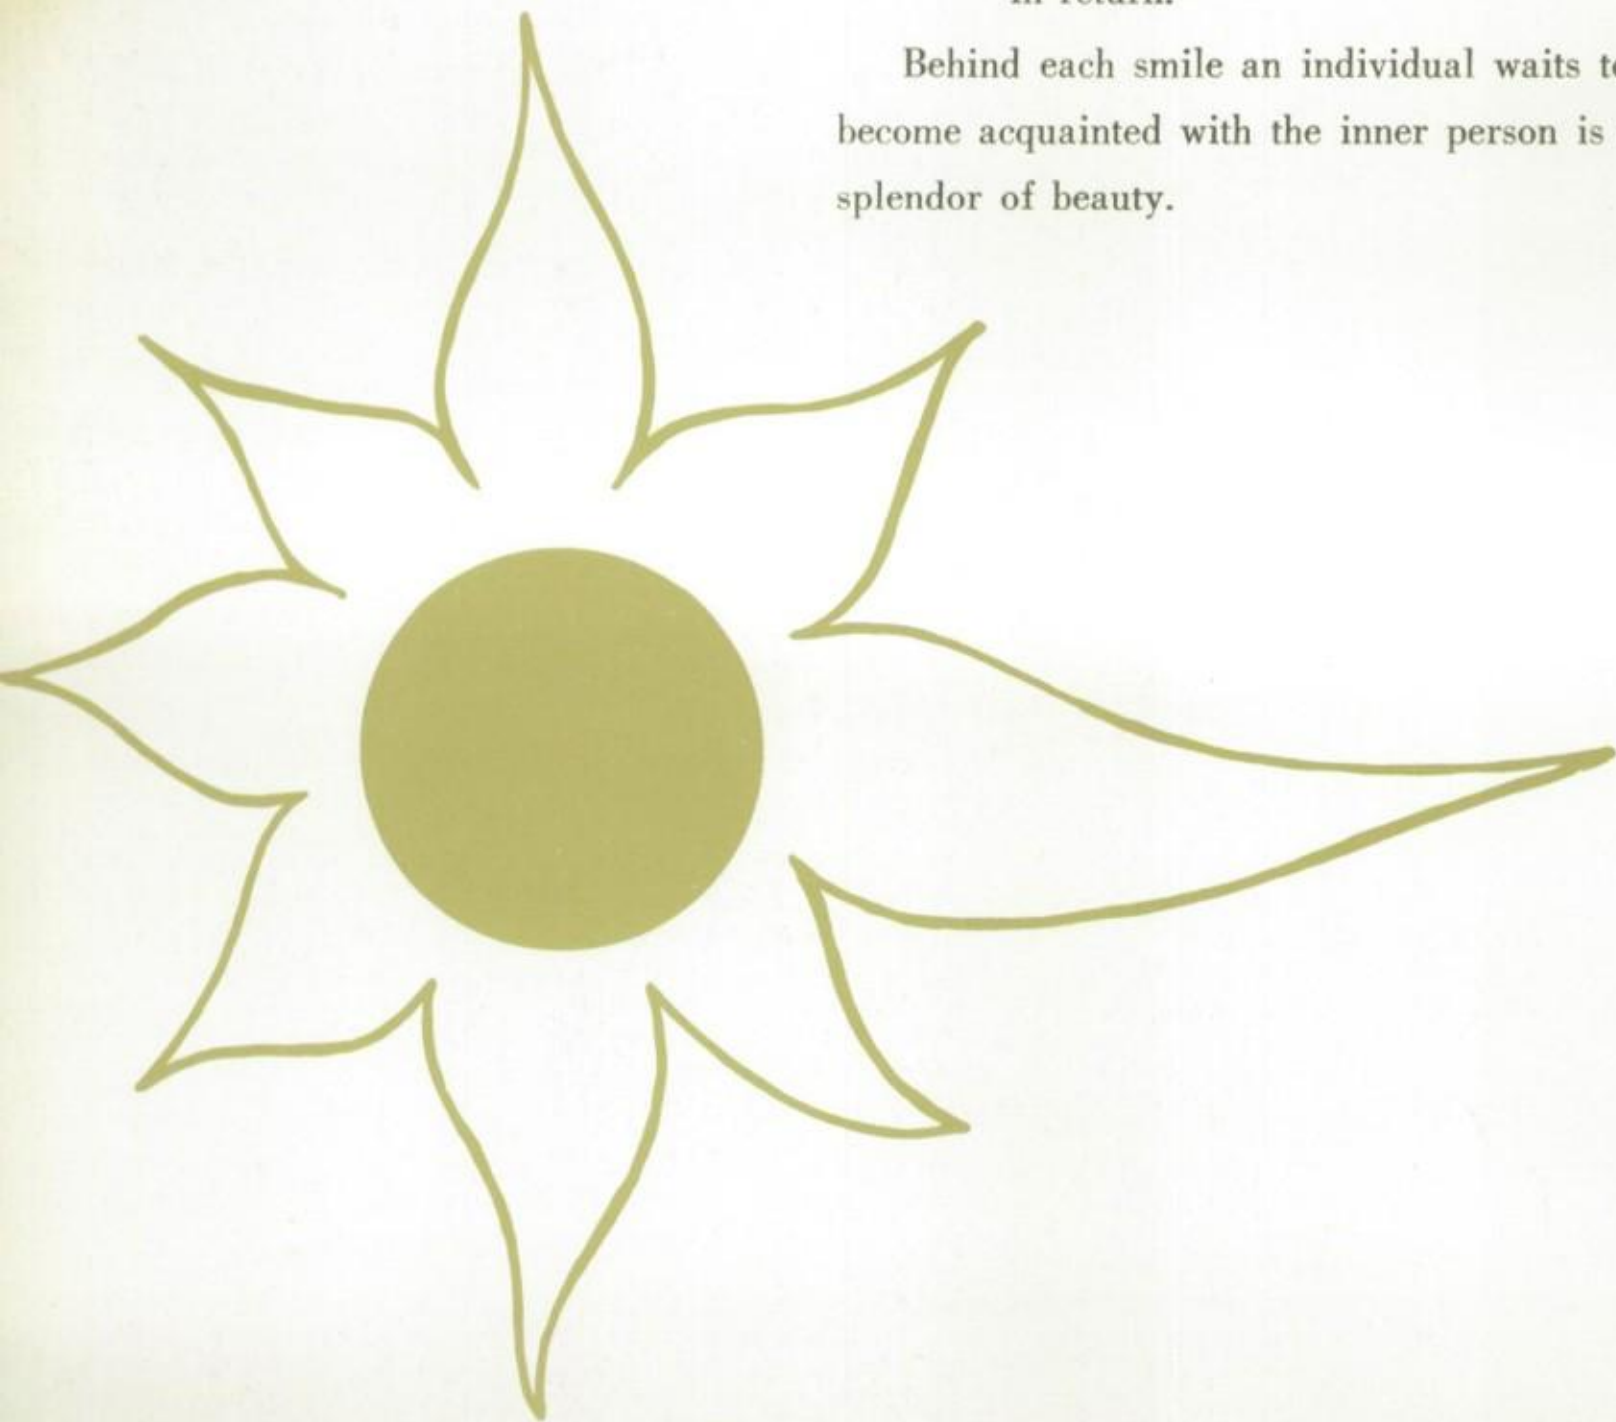

Will help you up the hill when you are sliding down.

Will say to your face what he says behind your back.

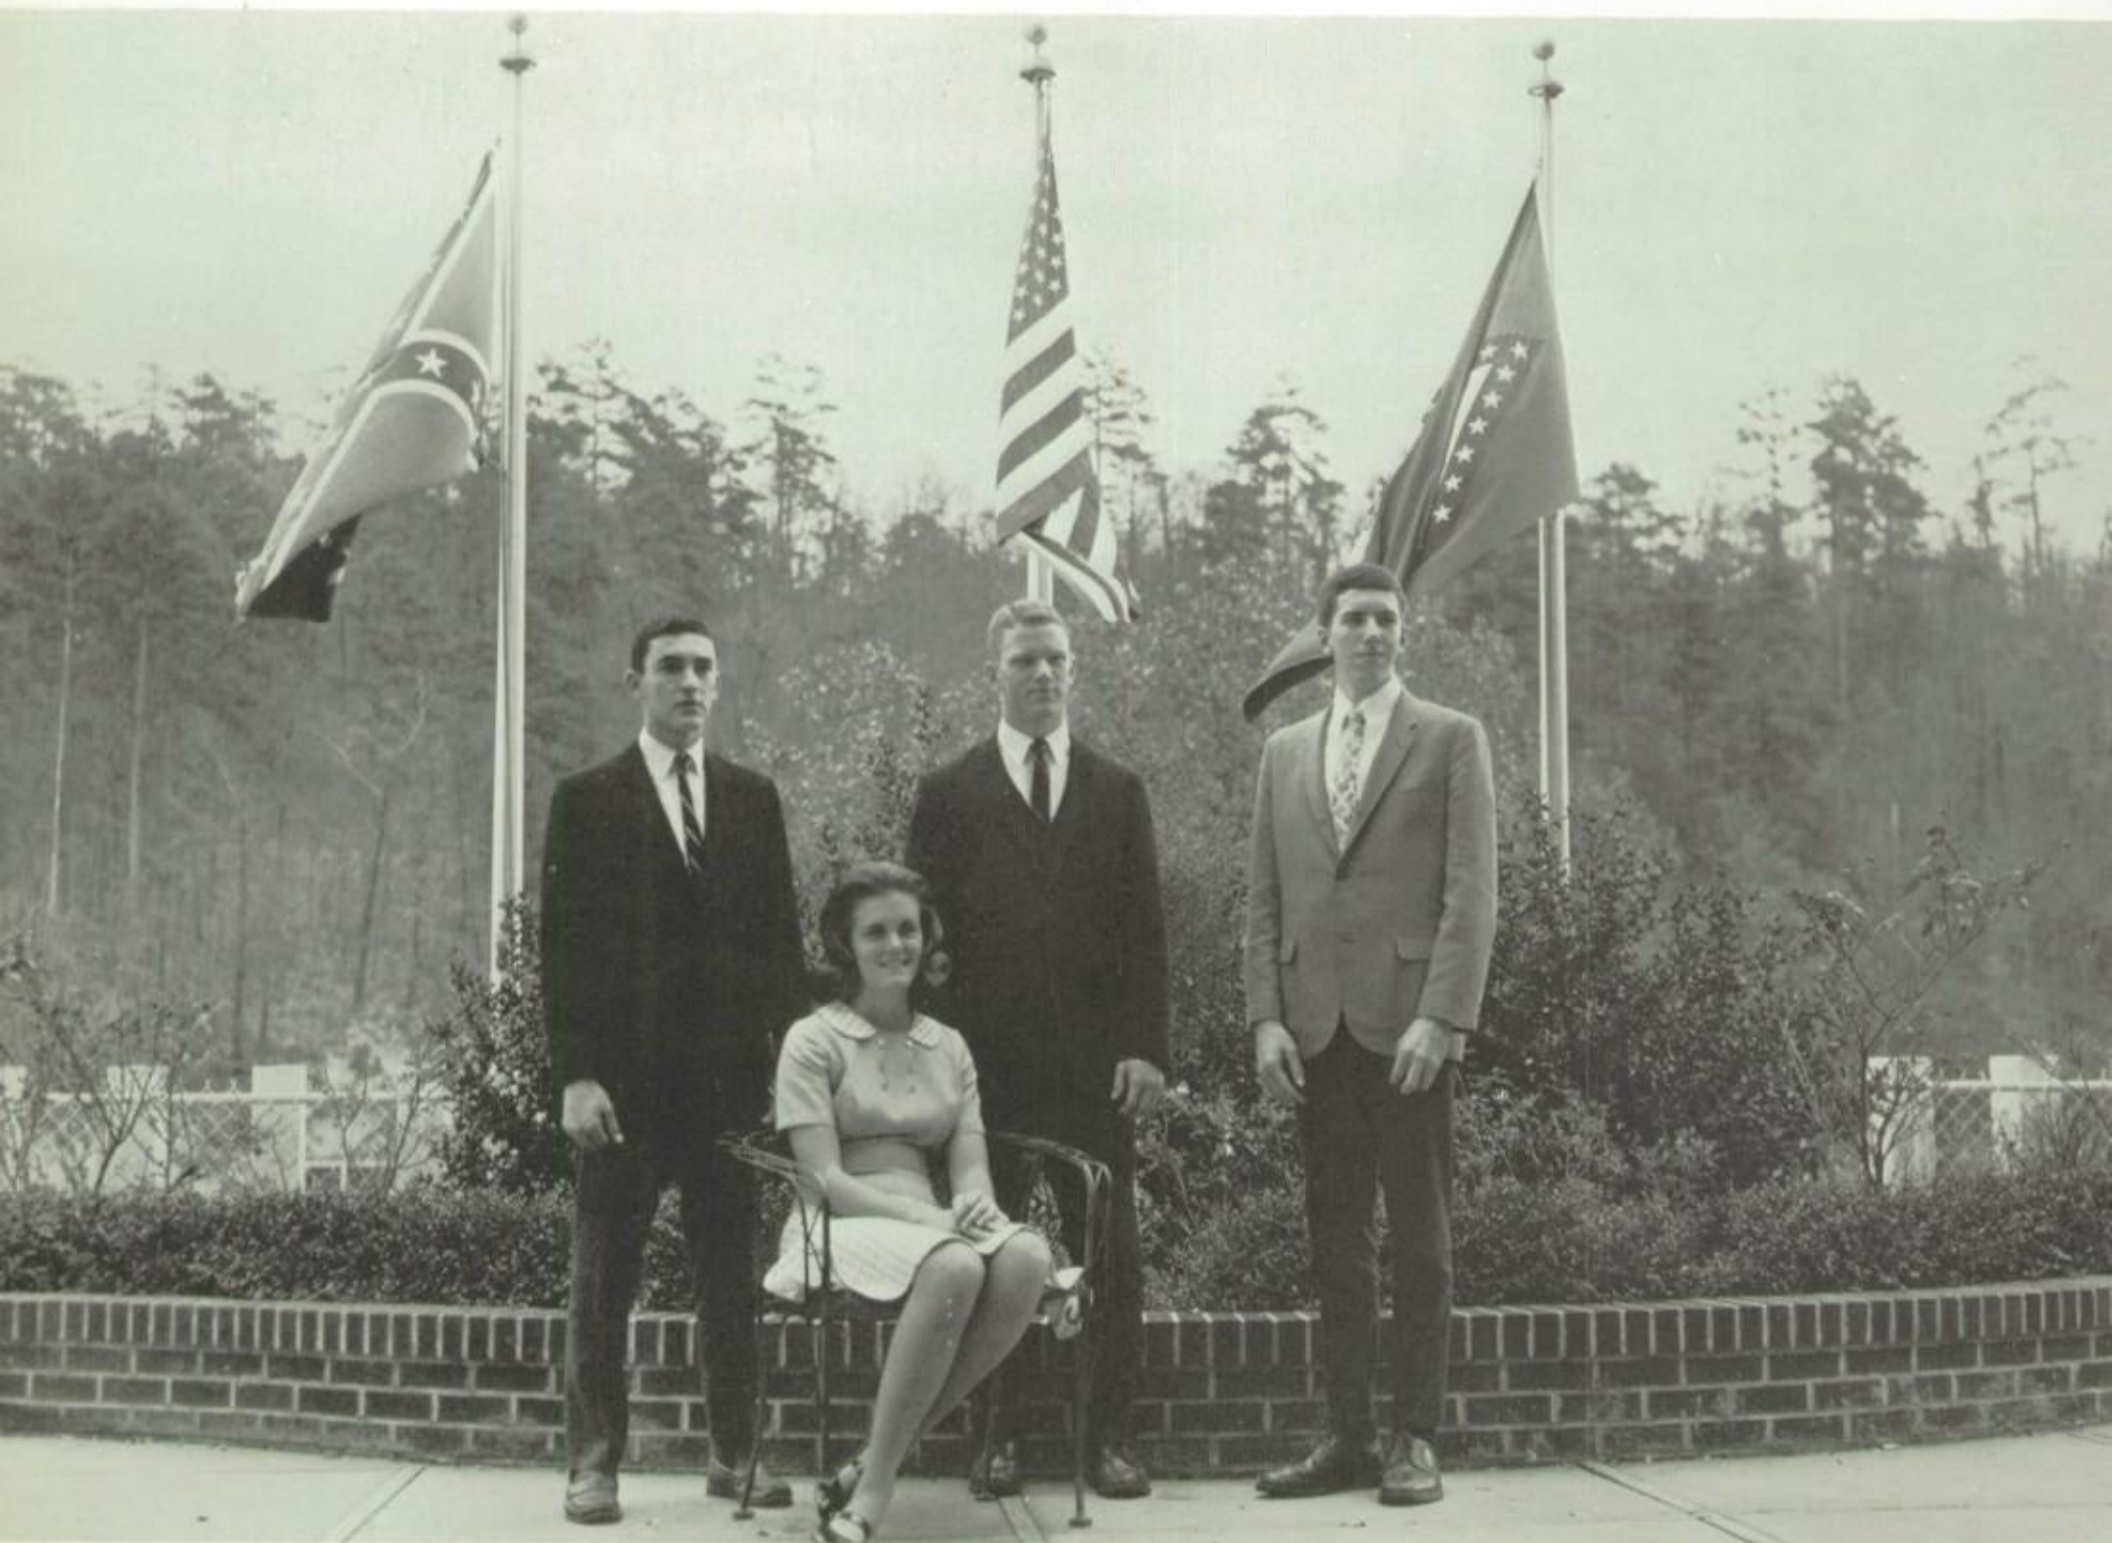

Will greet you whenever he meets you, even though you wear patches, and

Will do all these things without expecting anything in return.

Behind each smile an individual waits to be found. To become acquainted with the inner person is to discover the splendor of beauty.

Seniors

Yesterday is a dream of happiness, and there are so many yesterdays for us, as seniors, to remember. All of us can recall with pride how we have contributed to our school. As leaders we have paved the way for others by serving as responsible officers, by helping teachers, and by continually supporting our Trojan teams. We have been a class of exceptional students, having one of our members elected to Boys Nation and seven others chosen as National Merit Semifinalists, the largest number of such scholars that our school has ever had.

With much happiness we are able to look back upon experiences of the past few years. Pep rallies, ball games, and senior activities have been a few of the sources of fun and excitement. However, these memories are not without a note of sadness, because we realize they are over. But we can look to the future and be glad again, for we know that today has been well spent and that tomorrow will surely be filled with hope.

Juniors

We are the juniors of today, the sophomores of yesterday, and the seniors of tomorrow. We remember when we were the "baby" Trojans and were just learning about and beginning to participate in high school life.

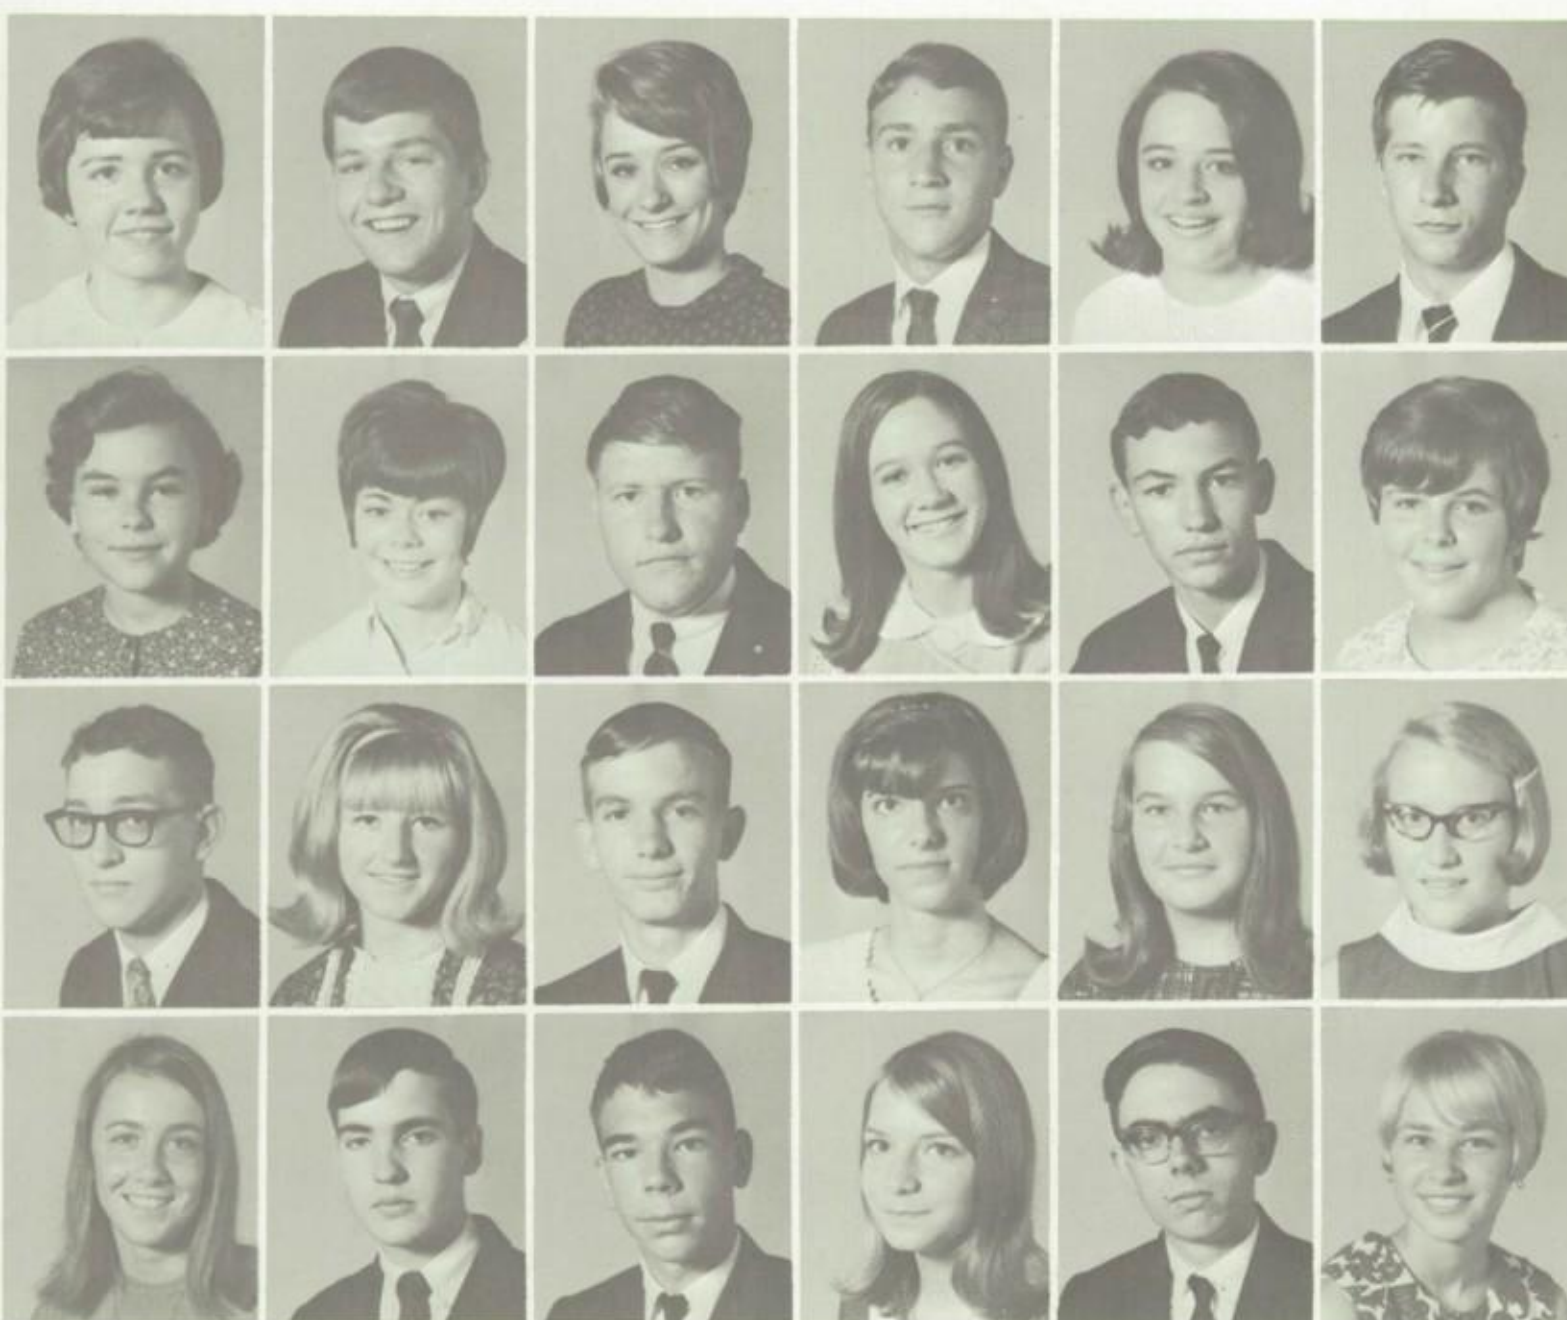

We joined with the sophomores and seniors as members of honor and scholastic clubs, such as Beta Club and Los Matadores. However, we alone took the Iowa Test of Educational Development and the California Mental Maturity Test. This was the first year for us to be members in the service clubs, such as Anchor Club and Key Club, since sophomores are not eligible to join. We accepted new responsibilities in these organizations and willingly helped in community projects. We attended the Junior-Senior Prom, served at the Senior Tea, and ushered at the Baccalaureate Service and Graduation.

We stop now to take a brief look at this day, for soon it will be gone. In the future we see new duties, pleasures, and rewards—and we look forward to that time.

While he earns dating money, Rob Meeks learns what the iron hand of an employer can mean.

Sophomores

As sophomores each of us has been given this year a new experience — the experience of beginning a new phase of our growth. Old rivals from junior high have become loyal and devoted friends. We realize now that the name "Trojans" is not merely a word but an honor and tradition that we must carry on.

New interests and pleasures found us as we attempted to become a part of the swing of high school. We joined Les Elites, JCL, Mu Alpha Theta, and the Spanish Club and were among their finest members. We gave our talents to the school in several special events — Spring Concert, Band Variety Show, and the Candlelight Service.

Through numerous problems the sophomore boys continued to play for the Trojan football team. The Pep Squad, which is made up almost entirely of sophomore girls, supported the team and contributed greatly to the Trojan spirit.

We are in no hurry to step up the ladder because our memories of this year are still very much alive. But we know that tomorrow must come. Our hope is that future sophomores will feel, as we have, the true cord of unity that ties us to the school.

Dear Everyone,

As you come for the first time to the close of this book, I hope you will wish to read it again and again, for that was our purpose — to produce a never-dying chronicle of this school year. Those of us who worked all year on the book feel each page has a special significance, each picture holds a hidden story. Not a page, however, would have been possible without you. Without your cooperation and assistance, all our efforts would have been in vain.

Because of lack of space, I cannot thank each of you personally, but I would like to thank those of you who have been the greatest help to me.

Above all, I thank you, Mrs. Housl y, for you rescued me so many times when I was lost. I never would have survived without your patient guidance.

To you, the OGB staff, goes my utmost gratitude. You worked long and hard, endured a grouchy editor, and gave up weekends so that we might get the book on time.

Also I thank our publisher and all the professional photographers who worked with us in the production of the book.

I shall not say that it was always fun or always easy, but it has been a great reward for me to be a part of the OGB staff.

Thank you, everyone.

Sandy
